

Will Give Soviet Policy in Mid-East

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.
(AP) — Jacob A. Malik gives the Soviet side of the Middle East debate in a major speech today to the U.N. General Assembly, but no announcement of any significant shift in policy is expected.

Malik, a deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union gave the assembly a foretaste Thursday night in an impromptu assembly speech replying to proposals made earlier in the day by U.S. ambassador Charles W. Yost.

Yost proposed that the assembly recommend extension by another three months of the U.S.-Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire, now due to expire next Thursday. He also urged steps to restore confidence so the stalemate in the Arab-Israeli peace talks could be broken.

Malik replied by denouncing the U.S. peace initiative as an attempt to replace the 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an over-all settlement with a U.S. plan favoring Israel.

He said Yost was making unfounded allegations about Soviet military aid to the Arab countries, and he asserted this was an example of "a new kind of U.S. foreign policy and propaganda."

He said the Soviet Union was proud of the military aid it was supplying the Arab countries, which he depicted as victims of Israeli aggression.

He asserted that Yost had tried in vain at the meetings of the Big Four U.N. delegates to get approval of the American peace initiative. Now, he said, the United States was trying to make the Soviet Union responsible for the cease-fire agreement by charging Egypt with advancing Soviet missiles closer to the Suez Canal.

The United States knows, Malik continued, that the Soviet Union cannot be held responsible for an agreement it did not approve.

Yost presented a resolution into some Arab states earlier calling for extension of the stand-down and endorsing the 1967 Security Council resolution.

The U.S. resolution draft also called on Israel, Egypt, Jordan, "and all concerned" to try to establish the conditions needed to get Arab-Israeli peace talks going again under the direction of U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Yost reiterated U.S. charges that Egypt had broken the cease-fire agreement, thus making it necessary for the United States to send Israel more military aid.

Yost also charged that the Soviet Union sent combat troops

Enemy in Attacks on Allied Posts

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops shattered the lull in the ground war in Vietnam today with heavy attacks on two allied positions. Four Americans, three South Vietnamese and 16 North Vietnamese were killed, and 27 Americans and 12 South Vietnamese were wounded.

U.S. officials had been anticipating a stepup in enemy activity to "grab headlines" just before the U.S. congressional elections next Tuesday. They said the North Vietnamese hoped to influence American voters against candidates backed by the Nixon administration.

In the heaviest assault, North Vietnamese troops moving under cover of a mortar barrage attacked Landing Zone Oasis, a U.S. artillery base in the central highlands defended also by South Vietnamese forces.

The U.S. Command said three Americans were killed and 21 wounded in the five-hour, pre-dawn battle, and some of the artillery was slightly damaged.

Field reports said three South Vietnamese troops also were killed and 11 wounded. The North Vietnamese lost 14 men, some of them cut down by American helicopter gunships.

Other North Vietnamese troops 28 miles north of Saigon made a similar attack on troops of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment in night bivouac 28 miles north of Saigon. One American and two North Vietnamese were killed and six Americans were wounded in the one-hour clash, and a former Viet Cong serving as a scout with the Americans also was wounded. Field reports said some armored personnel carriers were damaged.

The attacks were the heaviest ground assaults on U.S. positions since last July 22, when 12 Americans and 61 North Vietnamese were killed near Fire Base Ripcord, in the northern part of the country. Since then South Vietnamese bases have come under heavy shelling, and there have been numerous sharp ground clashes involving government troops. But activity involving U.S. forces has been mostly light.

Informed sources said the North Vietnamese were aided in assembling for the attacks by the curtailment of American air operations this week due to storms and hard rains lashing South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command, in a rush to meet President Nixon's latest cutback of 40,000 American troops by Dec. 31, announced the deactivation

HUGH HARRIS
Hugh Harris, 81, of South Spruce Street, Hope, died Thursday in a Little Rock hospital. He was a retired salesman for the U.S. Steel Company, a Protestant and a veteran of WWI.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Frewert Harris of Hope.

Graveside services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at National Cemetery, Little Rock, by Chaplain Carl Herrick. Burial will be in charge of Drummord Funeral Home of Little Rock.

MRS. EULA ROBERTS
Funeral services for Mrs. Eula Roberts, 84, formerly of Hope, who died Thursday at Jonesboro, La. will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at Garrett Memorial Baptist Church by the Rev. Clyde Johnson and the Rev. Carlton Roberts. Burial will be in Shover Springs Cemetery by Herndon Funeral Home.

of four more Army units and the return to the United States of a fifth unit, a total cut in American strength of about 2,000 men. Four of the units are helicopter companies with about 100 aircraft. Some of the helicopters already have been transferred to the South Vietnamese air force.

Current U.S. strength in Vietnam is 377,100 men, and this is to be reduced to 344,000 under Nixon's fifth phase of troop cutbacks.

Cambodian ground troops and naval units launched a major operation just southeast of Phnom Penh in an attempt to sweep away Communist concentrations that had pushed virtually within rocket and mortar range of the city.

Reports from the scene indicated the bulk of the task force met no resistance. But one amphibious assault was driven back across the Mekong River by withering fire, and one government soldier was killed and 25 wounded.

Cambodian officers said the government force was operating in a sector six to 15 miles east-southeast of Phnom Penh and would attempt to encircle and destroy the enemy force in the area.

The northwest edge of the operation was in the same area where Viet Cong forces ambushed a river convoy bringing home several hundred Cambodian soldiers from combat training in Vietnam. The fire from the bank killed 13 of the returning soldiers and wounded 50.

During the night Viet Cong fire harassed a government outpost on the east bank of the river 10 miles north of Phnom Penh, at Plum Kroch Soeuch, for the second successive night. There were no reports of casualties or damage.

Fighting Is Reported in Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israelis living along the Lebanese border reported today that fighting apparently broke out Thursday night between Lebanese army units and Arab guerrillas in southern Lebanon. They said artillery explosions in the area of the Hasbani River were heard in Israel.

Although the Lebanese-Israeli border has been quiet since the civil war in Jordan, the Lebanese army and guerrilla forces have clashed several times. Villagers in the area reportedly are demanding that Beirut restrain the commando activities.

The same Israeli sources reported Arab guerrillas in Jordan fired a number of rockets at the Israeli border settlement of Nahal Mehula in the Jordan Valley. But they said there were no casualties or damage.

In Amman, a Jordanian policeman and a Palestinian guerrilla were killed in a 30-minute exchange of fire during the night, the Arab peace mission reported. It said a second policeman was wounded and a police car was burned out.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine warned in Beirut that the appointment of Wasfi Tell as Jordan's new premier was a direct challenge to the guerrilla movement and could "plunge Jordan into a new civil war." The Marxist organization called Tell Jordan's "most ruthless counterrevolutionary leader."

Newspapers in Beirut controlled by Syria and Iraq claimed that King Hussein named Tell to steer Jordan into a unilateral peace settlement with Israel.

Cairo's semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said Tell's appointment was suggested by King Hussein at last month's Arab summit meeting in the Egyptian capital, but that President Gamal Abdel Nasser vetoed the idea.

The paper said the late Egyptian president's opposition to restrained, optimistic language, the State Department Thursday called for the immediate release of the passengers who include two American generals.

A statement handed to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin said, "There is no justification for any further delay by the Soviet Union."

Meanwhile, the Soviets continued to portray the plane's landing in Russia across the Turkish border as a hostile act and linked it to alleged reconnaissance flights from U.S. bases.

A commentary in the Soviet news agency Tass said the incident "has again drawn the attention of the world public to the serious and constant threat of peace," from "400 large and 2,000 small American war bases on foreign territories."

The American bases, Tass said, are "situated in the immediate vicinity of the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries and are widely used for espionage and other hostile activities."

The United States maintains the small white plane flew into Soviet territory accidentally. Besides the generals, an American major and a Turkish colonel were on board for what the U.S. says was a tour of Turkish border installations.

Dobrynin was handed the statement during a meeting with acting Secretary of State John N. Irwin. Afterwards the Soviet envoy said release of the passengers "depends on the results of the investigation" his country is conducting.

Talking to newsmen in the lobby of the State Department, Dobrynin said "the general consensus of this meeting was that it would be better for this not to happen again and for the generals to stay where they belong."

Specifically, the U.S. statement accused the Russians of ignoring terms of the 1968 U.S.-Soviet consular convention by not allowing American diplomats to see the passengers of the plane for five days after it went down.

The convention, the statement said, "specifically requires that access be accorded within four days at most."

Tell was motivated by "a definite opinion about what his appointment would imply" for the Palestinian guerrillas.

In his weekly editorial, Al-Ahram editor Muhammad Hassan Heikal said the Arabs' eastern front with Israel "is virtually on the verge of collapse."

Bombs Damage Army Buildings in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Three bomb explosions within 20 minutes early today damaged two military reserve buildings in Queens and a police motorcycle headquarters in the Bronx, police said.

There were no injuries although two of the buildings were occupied. A police spokesman said the blasts apparently were coordinated. Windows were shattered and outside walls slightly damaged in each instance.

The first bomb exploded at 3:20 a.m. in the machine shop of a Naval Reserve annex in Whitestone, Queens. An anonymous woman telephoned the guard prior to the blast warning that he had five minutes to leave the building.

Police said the second explosion at 3:25 a.m. in a U.S. Army Reserve center in the Jamaica section came without warning. It was the second blast at the barbed-wire enclosed facility this year.

The headquarters of Motorcycle Precinct No. 1 at Union port Road and the Bronx River Parkway was hit at 3:40 a.m., again without warning, police said. A similar facility in Queens and police headquarters in Manhattan have been targets of bombs earlier this year.

Bodyguards for Officials in California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)

Armed military plain-clothes policemen from the California National Guard have been assigned as bodyguards to state officials because of general threats of election time violence by revolutionaries, Gov. Ronald Reagan says.

The Republican chief executive, seeking a second term Tuesday, gave no details. Sources said the guards were assigned to the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, attorney general and superintendent of public instruction, as well as to Reagan.

The governor said Thursday he offered the same protection to Democratic candidates for those offices. The Democrats said they had not received the offer.

Jess Unruh, Reagan's Democratic opponent, called Reagan's action political grandstanding.

Mistake Kills Nine Vietnam Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command said today that nine South Vietnamese civilians were killed, 25 wounded and 15 missing as the result of a mistaken attack by American helicopters on a group of fishing boats last June 20.

The command said a joint U.S.-South Vietnamese inquiry had shown that the U.S. and South Vietnamese armies "share responsibility" in the case and that persons who file valid damage claims will be compensated.

Officials launched the investigation after a South Vietnamese legislator claimed more than 100 civilian fishermen were killed or missing in an incident which occurred in the Gulf of Siam off South Vietnam's Kien Giang Province.

A U.S. Command statement said the helicopters were on a routine patrol along a canal leading toward the coast when the boats were sighted in restricted waters. The pilots requested clearance for the attack, and the Vietnamese tactical operations center for the province granted it.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED for it, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

WHICH COMES FIRST, THE PRICE TAG OR THE GIFT?

Dear Helen: With Christmas not too far away, perhaps you could print something about the relative value of gifts. Our society tends to place a monetary value on everything, so it's no wonder kids pick it up. Have you noticed how every kiddy TV program promotes the most expensive toys, dolls, games—even cereal—not necessarily the best?

We operate a foster home and on birthdays and holidays we run into the problem of how to help these youngsters select gifts for their families—with whom there are often close ties. Now, maybe the fact that they've been kicked around a bit has something to do with it, but we're constantly surprised at how much emphasis they place on the monetary tag.

The other day our little foster daughter was worrying about Christmas presents for her mother and dad and six brothers and sisters, all scattered in foster homes. I suggested that she get busy early and make cookies or candy. Helen, she laughed in my face. She would rather not give anything, she said, than "cheap homemade stuff." (As you know "foster" money is limited—we can afford ingredients for baking, but not $5.00 gifts!)

For years our own family has had fun with Christmas cooking. Some of our nicest memories are of opening those boxes of fancy gingerbread men and other treats. Should I try to persuade our foster child that gifts from the heart are better than those from the pocketbook? My husband says we have offered, and been refused, so now we should forget it and let her search for store-bought things she can't afford! We love her as one of our own. At age 11, are her values "set" beyond change? —OLD FASHIONED Dear O. F.:

Argument doesn't "rub in" values, but you'll be surprised how fast they "rub off" on your foster daughter as she watches the fun of Christmas giving at your house.

I'll bet a gingerbread man to a snickerdoodle that by the middle of December she'll be as involved in holiday cooking as you are. —H.

Dear Helen: I'm shocked at you, Helen! You seemed to condone an adulterous live-in arrangement between a soon-to-be-divorced man and the woman he intends to marry "when he's free." When the man's father wouldn't speak to him because of this, you agreed with his mother that the attitude is hypocritical, inasmuch as he had always liked and approved of his son's future bride.

Adultery is adultery, whether it's an "adult decision that harms no one vitally" or not! That father has more sense than the rest of you combined! —SHOCKED

Dear Shocked: Sorry, you read me wrong. To condone or condemn wasn't the question, since the decision had already been made.

I simply agreed with the wife that her husband should not expect to resume friendship after the marriage with a son he had all but disowned before. Snubs aren't that easily erased!

How much less hypocritical to say, "While I'm disturbed about your choice, I care for both of you very much... and here's to an early wedding!" Right? —H. Dear Helen:

The letter about father and son marrying daughter and wife reminds me of "Mark Twain's Puzzle": He wrote—I married a widow with a grown daughter. My father fell in love with my step-daughter and married her, thus becoming my son-in-law and my step-daughter became my mother because she was my Dad's wife.

My wife gave birth to a son, which was, of course, my father's brother-in-law and my uncle for he was the brother of my step-mother. My father's wife became the mother of a son. He was, then, my brother and also my grandchild for he was the son of my daughter.

Accordingly, my wife was a grandmother because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time. And as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather—I AM MY OWN GRANDPA! READER

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Only a short time back networks' prime time was awash with comedy-whimsy and comedy-fantasy. In recent years some have been big hits before they passed on—"Batman" was one—and some were dogs that scurried away fast, including "Captain Nice."

"Bewitched" on ABC, probably the first of the fantasy situation comedies, still is a stalwart of the ABC lineup. It seemed to have inspired others. "I Dream of Jeannie" came along and while never really a hit, stayed on for several seasons. "The Flying Nun" soared, but never too high, until she was grounded permanently after three seasons.

Currently on the TV scene there is but one other situation comedy in the "Bewitched" category, "Nanny and the Professor." Nanny's magic, however, is attributed to her psychic powers.

Thursday night's program was typical of the series' approach. Samantha, the pretty young witch married to the human advertising man, is handed a reproduction of a Revere teapot which is to be presented to a prospective client of her husband. The silver piece gets mixed up in a magic switch. When a nervous, maladroit witch attempts to replace the teapot, she accidentally evokes Paul Revere himself and his horse.

One of the most interesting things about Bewitched is that it attracts an audience that cuts across the age spectrum. That adults can absorb this sort of imaginative nonsense and all the camera tricks is due largely to the beguiling acting of the cast, headed by Elizabeth Montgomery. Dick Sargent plays her constantly exasperated husband, while Agnes Moorehead, Maurice Evans and Paul Lynde pop in and out as the heroine's amusing witch and warlock relatives.

CBS's announcement on the season's programming said that "Ted Mack and the Original Amateur Hour" would start its 13th season on the network in October.

But the month is nearly over and the program's producer has yet to learn when, if at all, the program will be resumed. The show has a sponsor and staff have plans between a soon-to-be-divorced man and the woman he intends to marry "when he's free." When the man's father wouldn't speak to him because of this, you agreed with his mother that the attitude is hypocritical, inasmuch as he had always liked and approved of his son's future bride.

Cooking Career? Few Want It

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Nutrition Columnist

Our eating habits are changing. Not many males are getting the carefully prepared food their grandmothers cooked for their men.

This is the opinion of Anita Fial, Cornell graduate with 15 years experience in institutional and consumer food promotional work.

"Most homemakers, particularly the younger ones, are looking for the easiest way out of feeding the family. Their major interest lies in convenience foods," she observes, adding:

"I really question the sincerity of their being interested in the nutritional content of the foods they give their children. They want to fill them up and send them out. They have too many other interests to spend much time on cooking."

When women entertain at home, the picture is different. "Then they try to excel in what they serve. They use imagination or the latest cookbooks or magazine articles, trying to serve something different or prettier to stir envy in their guests. Often they use their best china, silver and linen."

"But for their families, it's back to the convenience products—frozen, canned or powdered products," she explains. Her observations are based on constant travels.

She thinks that housewives in the Middle West, for example, more or less follow the pattern.

"Maybe not quite so definitely. Many have jobs and have acquired new interests like most of their major urban sisters. They are emancipating themselves from hours in the kitchen. Long hours of cooking have lost their charm or sense of rightness for them. Except maybe for women on farms," she adds.

As housewife and mother of two, she feels that children have a direct influence on what the family eats.

"They see TV ads for a new cereal, a new candy bar, a new snack, so they want it. Novelty appeals to children and adults. This is why food companies strive to bring out new products constantly," she says.

As an executive with Lewis-Neale, Inc., prominent food publicists, she notes a great increase in the use of foreign food ideas. Flavor is the big thing and explains the enormous increase in the use of spices.

"Travelers want to recreate the flavors of the dishes they enjoyed in Italy, Spain, France and Latin America. The fantastic increase in use of oregano is one example. The same with saffron, too. Use of curry powder has increased. Also chili. The sale of mushrooms, widely used in European cooking, has increased 50 per cent in the United States in the last 10 years," she reports.

"Our way of cooking the so-called foreign dishes," she explains, "differs from the painstaking methods in old-world homes. We use convenience foods as the base. But with flavor the big interest, we use spices more and more. And everyone seems happy with the results except the gourmets," Miss Fial observes.

At the Congress of Vienna in 1814-15, six sovereigns, more than 700 diplomats and their retainers gathered in Vienna to determine the future of Europe after the defeat of Napoleon. The housing shortage they created affected even the royal family. To accommodate some of his more illustrious guests, the Austrian Emperor Franz I vacated the Hofburg Palace and moved to his summer residence.

Camden to Play Hope Here Tonight

By BILL MOORE
Star Sports Writer

Tonight, the battle of the once beaten in conference play pits the Hope Bobcats at home against the Camden Panthers, in the final conference game for Hope.

Gametime is set for 7:30 p.m., and both teams will be trying to win and assure themselves sole possession of second place in the 4AA West race.

Both teams are rated in the top ten of the AA state rankings and with a win, possibly move up further.

The Hope Booster Club is sponsoring a chili supper tonight at the school cafeteria from 5 to 7 p.m. before the game and anyone who loves good chili should go.

Crawford Three Under Par in Sahara Meet

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Richard Crawford of Bella Vista, Ark., fired a three-under-par 68 Thursday in the first round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament.

Crawford, who had nines of 34-34, is four shots off the pace set by Tommy Aaron.

Miller Barber of Texarkana was far back in the pack with a 73.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A national track and field event set for Saturday when world pole vault record holder Christos Papanicolaou had planned to better his 18 feet, 4 1/2 inch jump, has been postponed.

The Greek Sports Federation said the meet was called off due to technical reasons and probably would be held Nov. 9.

Papanicolaou, first athlete ever to clear 18 feet, had announced he would aim for 18 feet 4 1/2 inches in his next try. He added, however, that he would make his try only if weather conditions were ideal and warm.

Broyles Is Worried Over Layoff

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— Eighth-ranked Arkansas has won big its last four times out, but coach Frank Broyles is complaining.

"Our first team has played a little more than half in the last four games and only played eight plays in the last game," said Broyles whose Razorbacks meet Texas A&M Saturday afternoon at College Station.

The Razorbacks put away Tulsa, TCU and Baylor by the middle of the third quarter and then, after a week off, took on a tragedy stricken Wichita State team. Arkansas' first team rang up 17 points in seven minutes and retired for the night.

"I'm worried whether our team can recapture the momentum we had against TCU Baylor," Broyles said. "We've had an unusually long layoff. We've never experienced anything like that."

Broyles complained during the week that the layoff hurt the Razorbacks' timing. "Our execution has been poor," he said. "We haven't looked like we did before we played Baylor."

The Razorbacks are rated 21-point favorites, but Broyles says the Aggies play best when their opponents are heavily favored.

He points to the Aggies' 20-18 upset of LSU at Baton Rouge and a 14-10 loss to Michigan. Both LSU and Michigan are ranked in the top 10.

Arkansas is the nation's top scoring team, averaging 42 points a game, and is fourth in total offense with 464.3 yards a game.

Arkansas tailback Bill Burnett, who is 12 points shy of the Southwest Conference career scoring record of SMU's Doak Walker, was held out of the Wichita game but is expected to start against A&M. Rick Kersey, an all-conference defensive tackle last year, is expected to return to the starting lineup after nursing an injured ankle since fall practice.

Planker John Rees and Safety Steve Walters are on the doubtful list.

The Razorbacks have won 11 of the last 12 meetings between the two teams and haven't lost at Kyle Field since 1956. The kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

Scot to Enter Top Races Next Year

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Former world champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland announced today he will drive the full Formula 1 Grand Prix and Canadian-American Challenge Cup racing circuits next year.

The 31-year-old long-haired Scot said he will campaign a Ken Tyrrell-designed, Ford-powered machine on the world championship trail and a British-made Lola-Chevrolet in the $1 million Can-Am series.

He also announced he has signed an agreement with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. as a major sponsor, replacing Dunlop which is pulling out of auto racing at the end of the year.

Revealing his plans at a news conference, Stewart said his Can-Am car will be owned by Carl Haas and Associates of Chicago. Haas' Lolas have been regulars on the Can-Am circuit for several years and this year were driven by New Yorker Peter Revson.

It was learned that Revson, a crack road racer, will become the No. 2 driver behind New Zealander Denis Hulme in the McLaren Can-Am team.

Revson, 29, would replace Britisher Peter Gethin who joined McLaren after the third race in the 1970 Can-Am. Gethin, 30, will concentrate on McLaren's efforts in Formula 1, insiders say.

Revson also will be one of McLaren's drivers in the three 500-mile races on the United States Auto Club championship circuit next year.

Stewart's agreement with Goodyear, announced by racing chief Larry Truesdale, calls for extensive testing programs not only in Formula 1 but in other types of racing.

Red Wings Polish Off Champions

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings, led by two old smoothies, polished off the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins 5-3 Thursday night in a National Hockey League game.

Detroit's Alex Delvecchio put in his 400th and 401st NHL goals in a career that is now in its 20th season. Aiding Delvecchio's effort was another NHL veteran, Gordie Howe, who pasted up his 100th regular season assist on the second Delvecchio tally.

The slow starting Wings have a 3-6-1 record this season but no one would have known that Thursday night as the Wings outshot Boston 43-35 in breaking a four game winless streak.

The Wings had the lead three times in the game before they finally held it against a steady Boston attack. As Coach Tom Johnson of Boston said, "We caught them at a bad time when they were desperate."

Scoring for Detroit in addition to Delvecchio were Howe and Dale Rolfe. Boston goals were scored by Phil Esposito, Ed

Takes Porks Over A&M by 35-14

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles says the Texas A&M Aggies play best when their opponent is heavily favored.

So, the oddsmakers up and make Broyles' Razorbacks a 21-point favorite over the Aggies in their Southwest Conference battle Saturday afternoon at College Station.

Broyles remembers the Aggies' performance against LSU and Michigan — both members of the nation's top 10. Against LSU at Baton Rouge, the Aggies hit a last-second pass and handed the Bayou Bengals their only defeat of the year 20-18.

A couple of weeks later, the Aggies journeyed to Ann Arbor, Mich., where the Wolverines scored in the fourth quarter for a 14-10 victory.

The eighth-ranked Razorbacks appeared headed for a peak after they blasted TCU and Baylor, but the last three weeks will probably hurt. After a week off, Arkansas walloped tragedy stricken Wichita State with the first unit playing only seven minutes.

Arkansas' defense should get a boost when Rick Kersey returns to the left defensive tackle spot after nursing an injured ankle. Tailback Bill Burnett, who also missed the Wichita game, is expected to play and needs 12 points to tie the Southwest Conference career scoring record of 288 points set by SMU's Doak Walker.

Safety Steve Walters and flanker John Rees are still on the doubtful list.

The Razorbacks know what to expect from A&M and should present Broyles with his 101st victory at Arkansas.

ARKANSAS 35, TEXAS A&M 14.

Arkansas State University, the top-ranked team in the college division, can wrap up at least a share of the Southland Conference title with a victory over Lamar Tech at Jonesboro. The Indians survived their biggest conference challenge last week, edging Abilene Christian 28-23.

ASU, with their third straight conference championship and the national ranking on the line, should impress the home folks.

ASU 28, LAMAR TECH 10. Southern State and Arkansas Tech meet at Russellville Saturday night with the top spot in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference at stake.

Both teams are 3-0 in conference play and will have only two conference games remaining.

Homecoming, Phil Fisher's passing and a stronger intersectional schedule add up to a Tech victory.

ARK. TECH 21, SOUTHERN STATE 17.

Last week's percentage was .667. Here are other predictions involving college teams in Arkansas:

Arkansas AM&N 21, Harding 14.
Mississippi College 14, Arkansas A&M 7.
SW Missouri 19, Henderson 14.
Ouachita 14, Austin College 10.

Westfall and Don Marcotte. Wing Coach Ned Harkness has assured Detroit's No. 1 line of Howe, Delvecchio and Frank Mahovlich that Howe is out of the defenseman role that was part of early season experimentation by the freshman coach.

In the only other NHL game scheduled the Philadelphia Flyers took the Los Angeles Kings for a three-goal third period and handed them a 3-1 loss.

Los Angeles had taken a 1-0 lead in the second period on a 25-foot deflection shot that slipped by Flyer netminder Doug Favell.

But the Flyers bounced back with goals from Wayne Hillman, Earl Heiskala and Serge Bernier.

Viking-Lion Game Tops in Pro Play

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League season reaches its midway mark this week with several critical games scheduled, including a NFC Central struggle for supremacy between Minnesota and Detroit that is enough to shake any selector.

This one is no different, and if the Vikings-Lions match-up doesn't do it, there's always Oakland-Kansas City or Green Bay-San Francisco, two other games that have a distinct bearing on conference races.

But pick we must. So here goes:

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Minnesota 24, Detroit 14—The Vikings have allowed only 39 points, including key victory over Rams last week, and Gary Cuozzo directs a precision ball-control offense. Lions hurt by losing defensive end Joe Robb.

Oakland 34, Kansas City 21—Maybe the Chiefs left their play book at the Super Bowl. But they haven't been the same since. Both teams chasing Denver in AFC West, but it'll be Raiders who catch Broncos now that Dan Conners is back at middle linebacker.

Green Bay 28, San Francisco 27—Packers, waiting for either Vikings or Lions to falter, upset Western NFC leaders on passing of Bart Starr and running of Donny Anderson, who seems finally to be enjoying himself as a pro.

Cleveland 35, San Diego 31—The Chargers can score but they give up more than they put on the board. Browns surprised defensively with shutout of Miami and Bill Nelsen now is No. 2 among AFC passers.

St. Louis 31, Houston 17—Stunned by Giants last week, Cardinals must right themselves, and should be able to do so with MacArthur Lane and Co. riddling crippled Oilers.

Baltimore 28, Miami 24—Don Shula, former Colt coach, will throw everything at Baltimore, but it's Bob Griese who really has to connect. Bubba Smith making Colts' Front Four mayhem-bent outfit.

Dallas 30, Philadelphia 10—The Eagles are overwhelming choice to win the sweepstakes for the No. 1 draft choice, but that's about all they're expected to win. Cowboys' defense playing tough.

Los Angeles 24, New Orleans 21—A day for Rams to be down following loss to Minnesota, but they'll have trouble losing to weak Saints. Besides, quarterback Roman Gabriel is a bounce-back guy.

Denver 31, Washington 20—Interesting battle between rushing leaders, AFC's Floyd Little for Broncos and NFC's Larry Brown for Redskins. Denver defense tougher, Little gets more yardage.

NEW YORK GIANTS 24, NEW YORK JETS 14—They've been arguing this one since AFL was born 11 years ago. With Giants' Fran Tarkenton hot and Joe Namath out of Jets' line-up, there's virtually no reason to argue anymore.

Boston 28, Buffalo 21—Joe Kapp, who has been mauled ever since he joined the Patriots, engineers his first victory. Despite victory over Jets, Buffalo offense lacks cohesion.

Atlanta 17, Chicago 10—The Bears gave Detroit a tussle and Dick Gordon is catching passes at a fast clip, but the Falcons get a bit stronger every week.

MONDAY NIGHT

Pittsburgh 27, Cincinnati 20—Pupil, Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll, beats teacher, Bengals' Paul Brown, with Terry Bradshaw clicking big for the first time since the exhibition season.

Football Forecast

COLLEGE STATION, TEX. (AP) — Fair skies and warm weather is forecast for the Arkansas - Texas A&M football game here Saturday. Gametime temperatures are expected to be in the 70s with light and variable winds.

Says Indians Will Stay on Warpath

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"With this game on Halloween and The Great Pumpkin coming down," John Ralston was saying, "we've got to be scared to death."

Sanford's head football coach was smiling as he looked ahead to Saturday's encounter with Oregon State and its colorful, rotund coach, Dee Andros—but then, stranger things have happened on the way to the Rose Bowl.

Like three years ago when boy-bound Southern California ran into OSU and wound up with its only setback, a 3-0 stunner by Dee's Beavers.

Nevertheless, this looks like Stanford's year and, despite a threat by Oregon's 16th-ranked Ducks, it appears quarterback Jim Plunkett and his No. 6 Indians will stay on the warpath toward the Pacific-8 Conference title and Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Stanford's Rose Bowl opposition—if the Indians do go all the way—will be all but decided as well Saturday. Second-ranked Ohio State collides with No. 20 Northwestern in the battle to determine Big Ten supremacy.

Both are undefeated in conference competition—as is fifth-rated Michigan, ineligible for the bowl since it played in last New Year's Day's classic.

"It's the biggest game since I've been head coach," says Northwestern's Alex Agase, who's had the job since 1964. "Nobody beats me or my players until they prove it on the field." Ohio State's Buckeyes are likely to do just that.

In other action involving The Associated Press' Top Twenty teams, top-ranked Texas hosts Southern Methodist, No. 3 Notre Dame visits Navy, Nebraska is at Colorado in a regionally televised game which most of the country will see, and Michigan heads for Wisconsin.

The seventh-ranked Air Force Falcons play at Arizona, No. 8 Arkansas is at Texas A&M, ninth-rated Tennessee hosts Wake Forest at Memphis and Louisiana State, No. 10, is idle as are 11th-ranked Arizona State and No. 13 Mississippi.

Auburn, No. 12, is at Florida, No. 14 San Diego State plays a night game against Fresno State, No. 15 Pitt is at Syracuse, Oregon is at Washington, No. 17 Missouri is at Kansas State, California is at No. 18 Southern Cal in another regionally televised affair and UCLA No. 16, hosts Washington State tonight.

Texas Meets Toughest All-Time Foe

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Top-ranked Texas meets its toughest all-time Southwest Conference foe in explosive Southern Methodist Saturday and Longhorn coach Darrell Royal warns "They're a football team that's dangerous."

Royal says he has a lot of respect for Mustang quarterback Chuck Hixson. "Anytime you've got the all-time leading NCAA chunker and his receivers get hot, you can be in trouble," Royal says. "Defensively, they're not big, but they are exceptionally quick. They have been tough to score against this year and they've ways been troublesome for us."

Texas has a 26-19-4 all-time edge on the Mustangs, including 9 of the last 11 games. The Mustangs won in 1965 and 1966.

A crowd of more than 60,000 will watch in Memorial Stadium with Texas a four-touchdown favorite.

Texas and Arkansas hold a 2-0 SWC record.

The eighth-ranked Razorbacks travel to College Station Saturday to meet the fast-sinking Texas Aggies, who are roosting in the cellar with an 0-3 slate.

All-SWC defensive tackle Rick Kersey will be available for duty against Texas A&M after sitting out most of the season with a bum ankle.

The Razorbacks, three-touchdown favorites, hold a 25-15-3 all-time advantage over the Aggies, who could just beat them once in the 1960s.

Arkansas leads the nation in scoring with an average of 42-points per game and ranks fourth in total offense.

The Aggies practically abandoned their wishbone-T last week in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat Baylor. Quarterback Lex James operated from a pro-set as A&M threw the ball more than it had done previously. The Aggies are last in the SWC in rushing.

A crowd of in excess of 30,000 is expected at Kyle Field. The Texas Tech Red Raiders are battling to stay alive in the SWC race and also being eyed as possible bowl material. Rice holds a 13-6-1 all-time edge but Tech is ahead by 5-4-1 in the decade since joining the SWC.

The Red Raiders are a touchdown favorite before a crowd expected to exceed 30,000 at Rice Stadium in the 7:30 p.m. CST kickoff. The Owls have been unable to mount a sustained offense, but play rugged defense.

Tech sparkles offensively under the leadership of junior quarterback Charles Napper, whom coach Jim Carlen calls a "winner" although Napper doesn't rate high statistically.

Baylor and Texas Christian collide in a SWC survival test at 2 p.m. in Amon Carter Stadium before some 20,000 fans or

Aaron Rips Course in Sahara Play

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Gold Writer LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I think I'm starting to play a little better," Tommy Aaron understated after carding a magnificent 64 in the opening round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

The 33-year-old Aaron, in a so. Each team is 1-1 and another SWC loss means it's wait until next year in the championship race.

The oddsmakers rate TCU a 10-point favorite in this one. The Horned Frogs hold a 39-30-7 all-time edge, including the last six in a row. Quarterback Steve Judy of the Horned Frogs is the SWC's total offense leader with an average of 176.3 yards per game.

Junior St Southall made his first start for Baylor last week and directed the Bears to a 29-24 victory over the Aggies. Baylor's Matthew Williams is also a top running threat.

rut since winning the Atlanta Classic earlier this year, went out Thursday and tore par to shreds, ripping out nine birdies in his round over the par 36-35-71 Paradise Valley Country Club Course.

The dazzling 64 was good for a two-stroke lead over Don January and Joe Carr.

January and Carr matched 68s on the Sahara Nevada course, another par 36-35-71 layout. Both courses are being used for the first two rounds, with the players switching courses each day. The final two rounds will be played on the Paradise Valley course.

Larry Hinson and Roy Pace were next at 67 while defending champion Jack Nicklaus, playing with a set of borrowed clubs, came in with a 76.

Billy Casper, the Masters champion, had a 70 and was well back in the field.

There were 11 players tied at 68, including Chi Chi Rodriguez, Terry Dill, Pete Brown and Tommy Shaw.

Aaron, from Georgia, a 10-year veteran of the tour, won his first official tour victory at Atlanta and then slumped.

"I've only had a couple of good finishes since then and I missed the cut twice, which is something I usually don't do."

Proves Short Men Can Play Basketball

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Calvin Murphy has proved once and for all that you don't have to be 7-feet tall—in fact, you don't have to be even 6-0—to play in the National Basketball Association.

Murphy, looking like a midjet scampering through a valley of giants, captured the hearts of Madison Square Garden basketball fans Thursday night, and he did it at size 5-9.

Although he came to town as a member of the visiting San Diego Rockets, Murphy got one of the biggest cheers of the night when he entered the game in the first quarter, and had the crowd roaring before he left.

The New York Knicks finally won 114-107, but Knicks' fans went away talking about the little dynamo who is making believers of everyone around the league.

No other NBA games were scheduled. In the only ABA game, Utah downed the New York Nets 114-105.

"They love him every place he plays, and hasn't always played this well," said Rockets' Coach Alex Hannum, referring to Murphy's 7-of-8 from the field, 9-of-10 free throws and 23 points, along with the fire he lit inside the Rockets.

The peppery little All-American from Niagara University doesn't start for the Rockets and plays only about 20 minutes a game. But he has caught the fancy of fans with his speed, his quickness, his ball handling and his deadeye shooting, and his size.

Against the Knicks, he scored 12 of his points in the final period as he led the Rockets back from a 60-49 halftime deficit.

Buzzing all over the floor, passing and shooting, Murphy's two free throws and basket pulled the Rockets within 109-107 and the partisan New York crowd found itself cheering for the opposition.

Finally, Willis Reed's rebound basket and free throw in the last 24 seconds saved New York's fourth straight victory. Reed finished with 24 points, two less than teammate Dick Barnett.

Only one ABA game is scheduled again tonight—Virginia against Carolina at Greensboro.

In the only NBA game played, the New York Knicks defeated San Diego 114-107.

The Utah Stars, the sole undefeated team in the ABA, were led by 6-foot-9 center "Big Z" Zelmo Beaty, who took game honors with 30 points—the most points he's scored in ABA play.

New York played without Rick Barry, a former leading ABA scorer recently purchased from Virginia. Barry, who is suffering from an ankle injury, has appeared in only one game for the Nets.

The Stars were slowing getting off the ground and trailed 69-68 at the half. Then in the third period Utah got its fast break functioning and outscored New York 39-19 for the period.

Plain Train Facts

1. Present railroad employees are guaranteed a job and pay.
2. Unneeded jobs, (not men, mind you) will be phased out through the years by promotions and retirements.
3. Railroad managements look at the long term effects of Act 1. They know that the full advantages of Act 1 will not be realized for several years.
4. Act 1 simply means that the railroads will not be forced to hire additional unneeded men as employees retire and are promoted.

Flood Won't Agree to Contract

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The meeting was called solely to explain how much the participants made in the 1970 World Series—but all anyone wanted to know was whether Curt Flood will get anything from the Washington Senators in 1971.

For the first time Thursday, a dent appeared in the armor of baseball's renegade outfielder, still enmeshed in a $4.1 million antitrust suit to overturn baseball's controversial reserve clause which binds a player to a club for life unless he is sold, traded or released.

Senators' owner Bob Short is trying to sign Flood, who sat out the 1970 season after being traded from St. Louis to Philadelphia and who—until Thursday—had insisted he would never sign a baseball contract containing the reserve clause.

At Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's Fifth Avenue offices, the $2,599,270 gross receipts from the five-game World Series was neatly divided up among the winning Baltimore Orioles, losing Cincinnati Reds and various other participants and teams—then Kuhn reiterated his stance that he "would not approve any contract without a reserve clause."

At the same time Flood said he was considering signing with Washington because, "like everybody else, I've had some business reverses and I need the money—but I still think the reserve clause stinks!"

Flood made his comments in an interview with New York Post writer Maury Allen.

The 32-year-old outfielder with the .293 career batting average in 14 major league seasons said Short offered him more than the $90,000 he earned in 1969, his last year with St. Louis. Washington gave the Phils a player for the right to deal with Flood.

Kuhn said Short has kept him apprised of the contract talks with Flood "and feels he can sign him. But there's litigation which obviously creates a problem."

"Flood is concerned that if he signs he prejudices his case and the defendants are concerned that if he signs he prejudices their case."

The defendants include Kuhn, the 24 major league teams and presidents Charles Feeney and Joe Cronin of the National and American leagues. A federal judge ruled against Flood in the initial phase of the suit and an appeal is pending.

Kuhn said he has "no prejudice against Flood playing ball while the appeal is being made."

Orioles Still Can't Beat Mets in Bank

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles still can't beat those New York Mets—not necessarily on the baseball field but in the bank.

The Orioles, who came out second best to New York in the five-game 1969 World Series before crushing the Cincinnati Reds in the 1970 version of identical length, were rewarded Thursday with winning full shares of $18,215.78—just $122.40 per man below the record set by the Mets.

The reduction was due to poorer attendance. Last year 274,001 saw the National and American league's playoffs and 272,378 the World Series. This year only 194,867 attended the league championships and 253,183 saw the series—an overall drop of 98,329.

Baltimore awarded 31 full shares and 13 partial shares or cash awards while the Reds handed out 32 full shares of $13,687.59 and 15 partial shares or cash awards.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, losers to Cincinnati in the NL championships, collected 31 full shares of $5,913.49 and Minnesota Twins, beaten by the Orioles in the AL playoffs, received 32 full shares of $5,901.47.

Bonavena Can Also Talk a Good Fight

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Heavyweight Oscar "Ringo" Bonavena is a crowd-pleasing fighter with a wade-in style. He talks a good fight, too.

The Argentine scrapper stopped Brazil's Luis Faustino Piris in the fourth round Thursday night, a few hours after Muhammad Ali had revealed in New York that a bout with Bonavena Dec. 8 was virtually set.

Bonavena didn't talk about his victory over Piris in the Dressing room. He only had words about his forthcoming fight with Ali, also known as Cassius Clay. "Now I am ready to face Cassius Clay and I hope to prove I'm as good as he is," Bonavena said with a smile.

"Clay is a great boxer," he continued. "But he has never, faced, so far, a man used to fighting at half-distance and strong enough to make him feel punches. I'll be his first rival of this kind and I hope he'll no longer be an unbeaten boxer after his fight with me."

Ali said he didn't know the exact date or site of the Bonavena fight, but promoter Chris Dun-

Fiddle Isle After Santa Anita Stakes

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
There's one thing owner Howard Keck, trainer Charley Whittingham and jockey Willie Shoemaker would like in horse racing. That is for their Fiddle Isle to beat Fort Marcy in the Washington D.C. International at Laurel Nov. 11.

First, though, they want Fiddle Isle to win the $108,600 Oak Tree Stakes at Santa Anita Saturday. That would make it seven straight victories in California for the 5-year-old horse and set the stage for his second Eastern invasion of 1970.

The first trip east wasn't successful. Fiddle Isle finished second to Fort Marcy, beaten by five lengths, in the United Nations Handicap at Atlantic City in September. Hence the desire to beat the Paul Mellon colt in the International.

The Oak Tree, in which Fiddle Isle under 126 pounds is favored to beat Hitchcock, Cougar II, Big Shot II, Daryl's Joy and Mickey McGuire, is one of the features in thoroughbred racing this weekend.

Elsewhere, there is the $100,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct, the $75,000-added Pimlico-Laurel Futurity at Laurel, the $50,000 Trenton Handicap at Garden State park and the $25,000 Jack R. Johnston Handicap at Sportsman's Park.

Also listed is the $15,000 Atherton Stakes at Bay Meadows and the $7,500 Watch Hill Handicap at Lincoln Downs.

Shuvee, a 4-year-old filly under 121 pounds, looms the probable choice in the weight-for-age Gold Cup, a gruelling test at two miles. Nodouble, expected to be the choice, was retired on Thursday for breeding purposes, leaving Shuvee to face Hydrologist, Naskra, Loud, Ship Leave and Scipion of Brazil.

Ali Finds Self Upstaged by Daughter

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali came to town to look at some movies and found himself upstaged by his 2-year-old daughter, Maryum.

Rarely seen in public, Maryum is a charmer. She is a scene stealer.

"Just like her father," said Ali's attractive statuesque wife, Belinda, bouncing the moon-faced tyke on her knee. "She talks a streak. Sometimes she lets out the wildest yells."

Belinda and Maryum accompanied Ali to New York Thursday to tape Ali's appearance on ABC's Wide World of Sports, to be shown on the network Saturday 6 to 7:30 p.m.

While Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, clowning with commentator Howard Cosell in front of the cameras, Maryum staged a show of her own in the wings.

She donned headphones to listen while her father described last Monday night's fight in Atlanta against Jerry Quarry which Ali won on a third round technical knockout.

"That's my daddy," she yelled delightedly.

"Shh...shh... Quiet please," admonished the producer.

"My daddy's a fighter," said Maryum.

Camermen and technicians stopped their work to watch the precocious offspring of the heavyweight champion of the world.

Maryum knew she was on stage. She made funny faces. She smiled. She threw her arms in the air like a champion being crowned after a fight. She drew doodles on the front page of The New York Times.

"Just like her father," Belinda repeated.

Belinda and Ali also have two other girls—twins, born prematurely two months ago, Reesha-ba and Jamillah. They were left home in Philadelphia.

"I've got to get back to Philadelphia, do some redecorating on our new house and get ready for my fight with Oscar Bonavena," Ali said.

Report to the People of Hempstead County

Advertising is now being heard over KXAR and seen in the press and on TV to the effect that the proposed Constitution of 1970 will inflict upon the people of Hempstead County "Enormous new taxes."

The proposed Constitution of 1970 provides for the levying by the governing bodies of city and county of exactly the same taxes which are provided for and levied under the present Constitution—which are: 5 mills in the city; 5 mills in the county. The difference is that if the people of city or county have a purpose for which they wish to allocate an additional tax (like bringing water from Millwood Reservoir) they may do so by a majority vote of those voting on the question in a general election. The city or county council is given no authority beyond what already exists. The authority to create new taxes or raise present taxes rests solely with the people, to use or not to use, as they see fit.

Advertising over KXAR says: "Your hard-earned savings are at the mercy of the tax collector." If they are, it is because the present Constitution makes it so, not the new one. Every person who signs an assessment form NOW is, under the law, supposed to list all his money and personal property. (If you have any doubts, get out your own assessment form for any year and look at items 11 and 13 thereon). The law is, of course, ignored over the state by most taxpayers. All the 1970 Constitution proposes to do is get it OFF the books by permitting the Legislature to reduce or ELIMINATE the requirement. This is one of the reasons this new Constitution should be adopted, for if there is any danger of savings being confiscated, it is under the present Constitution, NOT the new one.

This new Constitution takes power from the state government in Little Rock, and gives it back to the cities and counties where the people may govern themselves on the local level, and that does not meet with the approval of some people in Little Rock.

Please Remember, this advertising critical of the new Constitution is originating in Little Rock, not in Hempstead county. They have their reasons, as this new charter favors the smaller population areas more than it does the larger cities, and the way it does so is through the single member Legislative district. Pulaski county is against this feature, definitely. Among other opponents: Liquor dealers who want to keep the price monopoly the new Constitution will abolish.

Aside from taxes, what concerns Hempstead county most is the proposed reform in county government. As in all reform, some one has to be affected. In this case it is the county judge, whose office would be reorganized; and the justice of the peace, whose office would be abolished, and replaced by a 5 or 7 member council, elected from single member districts over the county. This would be a strong local body, much like the city council of Hope, and the form of government would be closely akin to Hope's City Manager form, with the county administrator (the county judge) having the approximate same relationship to county government as the City Manager does to city government. Other county offices need not, and unless the people so desired, definitely would not, be affected at all except for elimination of the fee system where it exists. Coroner and Surveyor could still be elective, but would not be constitutional offices. This entire county article gives to each county the authority to determine the kind of government it wants, within legislative limitations, and no longer would it be necessary to have the same government every other county has.

Incidentally, probably the best insurance you have AGAINST a 4 cent sales tax is the adoption of this new Constitution. Under its terms it would take 3/5ths of the Legislature to raise or levy any tax, instead of the present majority. Also, under a new Constitution, cities needing extra revenue can place a sales or other tax upon themselves, and let the rest of us alone. They do not presently have such authority.

As must ever be the case, privilege carries a degree of responsibility. A person who just does not want to take any part in government, probably could feel more secure under the 1874 Constitution; but on the other hand, an electorate willing to take its portion of responsibility in the life of the community, will find this new document gives a brand new opportunity for local self-government in Arkansas.

There are quite a number of things I do not approve, and voted against in the Convention, but on balance, I think this is a good document for Hempstead county. If I did not, I would say so just as quickly. I am more certain it is a better document for our children and coming generations.

It has been said that this may well be the single most important vote you have been called upon to cast thus far in the 20th Century. Just in case it is; won't you please THINK on this matter over the week end, and on November 3, vote like you think best. This matter is important; don't lay it aside and ignore it, if not for yours, then for your children's sake.

Sincerely,

—Wm. H. ETTER, Constitutional Delegate

Guard Against Food Bacteria

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Nutrition Columnist

Food science means a lot to the American consumer. It can to a large degree help protect the food she buys from contamination and spoilage. This, plus absolute kitchen cleanliness, adds up to both health and money protection.

The National Institute of Food Technologists was founded only in 1949. Yet today there are 9,000 professional members, whose fields are food chemistry, microbiology, nutritional adequacy and food engineering. The members, who prefer to call themselves food scientists, are in universities, government regulatory agencies and food companies. To a noticeable degree, most are concerned with protecting public welfare.

At Michigan State University, Dr. Richard V. Lechowich is professor in the Department of Food Sciences. His basic advice to all consumers is:

"If you have any doubts about the food you plan to serve, throw it out."

Bacteria that contaminate your food are his major concern. Today, with the holidays coming up with many parties and also with the high prices for food making it imperative you get every dollar's worth, he cautions:

"With cooler weather, so many people think the danger of food poisoning vanishes. That is not true. There is always danger of some bacteria lurking around your food supplies."

He continues: "This is less true than before most women began to practice greater cleanliness in preparing and storing food. Self-defrosting refrigeration helps, too, with its circulating currents of cold air. So do the use of styrofoam containers. But there is still danger of contamination."

Clostridium perfringens is one bacteria found in soil, water, food and in animal and human intestines. It is a gas gangrene which causes diarrhea, vomiting, and sometimes even more severe illness.

"Last year, in Tennessee, 1,600 children were infected by this bacteria from a school luncheon. The result of commercial food service, of course. But home cooks, also, can be dangerously careless," Lechowich warns.

He cautions against two other bacteria, salmonella and streptococcus, which are also found on beef, fowl and pork.

"These can produce the same kinds of illness as the gas gangrene bacteria. Today, with so many meals eaten away from home, be sure the eating places, such as franchised spots, handle their foods as carefully as you do at home."

Large volumes of vulnerable food should be kept out of temperatures at which bacteria thrive. This means at below 45 degrees, or over 145 degrees. Refrigerate leftovers promptly. Divide into portions small enough to control temperatures of all parts of the food, not just most of them. When you reheat them, do so thoroughly; don't just warm-up. These are some protection hints he gives.

"Take extra cleanliness precautions with kitchen tools, particularly with cutting boards and mixing bowls.

"Cooked meat is safe because heat destroys bacteria. But you need enough heat to do that," this professor of food science says.

Standards for Baby Food Labeling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a bill that would set federal standards for baby food labeling.

Also required would be a manufacturers' statement on infant formulas designed as substitute for human milk. The statement would have to be made when the product fell below federal standards for protein, fat, vitamins and minerals.

Strained vegetables, fruits and meats in baby foods would have to be labeled as to their ingredients and, where applicable, the animal or plant source.

But quantity listings would only apply to formulas; in other baby foods, only ingredient names would be needed.

Happiness Is a Movie Called 'Joe'

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—The man who is playing Joe in "Joe" may be 1970's big discovery.

His name is Peter Boyle. He looks as much like your idea of a movie star as Spiro Agnew looks like a Yippee leader. He's big, burly and bald. If he'd come along 20 years ago, he would be doomed to a career playing cops or truck drivers or bartenders.

But today's movie star can be anything. So Peter Boyle is starring in "Joe"—the story of a hard-hat heavy—and they're talking big things for him.

Boyle is a Philadelphian who didn't decide he wanted to act until he was 23. So he went to New York and—

"And starved," he says. "I starved for five years. I studied and I learned, but I hardly ever worked. It was tough."

The next five years were better but hardly magnificent. He was in the road company of "The Odd Couple" as one of the poker players. That took him to Chicago and he settled in for a long stay. He joined the Second City company then, improvising with those improvisers, and he did a brief but telling bit in the movie "Medium Cool."

"I decided I was getting too comfortable," he said, "so I went back to New York."

By now he was out of the starvation rut and he worked, steadily, mostly in commercials. You've seen him hundreds of times. But, as he says, even though it was lucrative, he was happy to leave it for "Joe"—he lost money on the deal, but he's an actor, after all.

Now the producers are coming to him. He says it's a nice feeling to be pursued.

At the Music Center here there is a pre-Broadway try-out of a big new musical, "Lovely Ladies, Kind Gentlemen." This is the musical version of "Teahouse of the August Moon" and one of an increasing number of plays which are using Los Angeles as a tryout town.

Why?

"Because," says the show's director, Lawrence Kasha, Los Angeles is a good place to begin. In New York, when a show opens, the first 90 days you get a sophisticated, critical audience. After that, you get the folks from the country.

"The Los Angeles audience is a little of both—it has more sophistication than other tryout cities, such as Detroit or Boston or New Haven. And yet there are a lot of folks from the country here, too.

"Another thing. The facilities are better than Detroit or Boston or New Haven. If we need a set built, you have all the set builders from the movie studios. If you need music copyists, you have the best. There is everything here we have in New York."

But one problem is that the theater here is too big and Kasha says he has to keep reminding himself that the New York theater, their permanent home, will be smaller.

Kasha splits his time between directing and producing. He produced one of Broadway's biggest current PETER BOYLE, as Joe, reads the paper on his way to work in the movie by the same name.

hits, "Applause," the Lauren Bacall vehicle. He also co-produced "Hadrian VII."

What Kasha and so many other Broadway people want to do now is switch to movies. The film medium is now more exciting, they say.

Kasha has definite movie plans—a property called, "Love in E-Flat," which had a modest Broadway run—but first he will produce a musical version on Broadway of "Two for the See-Saw." He hopes to get Liza Minnelli to star in that one.

Chili Beef—Dish for He-men

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Hearty chili dishes improve with aging. A special chili beef dish takes on a southwestern taste when simmered in a canned chili sauce. Use an enchilada sauce if possible, often available in supermarkets on the specialty shelves, and a touch of onion and garlic.

This is a great dish for the cook who likes to experiment and one the men in the family will call their own. Add or subtract to ingredients—use kidney beans, ripe olives, green pepper, pimiento and corn.

Serve over tortillas, rice, noodles, or mashed potatoes. It's also delicious served on cornbread. And don't forget to have a cooling beverage on the table.

MONTEREY CHILI BEEF
1½ pounds beef round steak, cut ¾-inch thick
1 tablespoon cooking oil
2 large onions, diced
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ cup canned red chili sauce

Spicy Monterey chili beef is good alone or topping rice or noodles.

1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup canned pitted ripe olives

Cut beef into ¾-inch cubes. Brown in oil. Remove beef, add onions and garlic, browning lightly. Combine onions, beef, chili sauce, water and salt. Cover and simmer 1 to 1½ hours until beef is tender, adding a little more water if needed. A few minutes before serving, stir in ripe olives. Serve with kidney beans or rice. Makes 4 generous servings.

Bad Old Days Haunt Ex-Nazi

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — According to John Patler, he had a fight with his wife on the afternoon of Aug. 25, 1967, and left his home to take a walk.

According to police, he did nothing of the kind. They say he stood on a roof above a shopping center laundromat in Virginia, fired a pistol and killed his friend and confidant, American Nazi "fuhrer" George Lincoln Rockwell.

A 1967 jury believed the police and John Patler, now 32, a former American Nazi party captain, is legally guilty of first-degree murder.

But today, many people in this area do not really know whom to believe. Patler served six months of a 20-year sentence, then was released on $40,000 bail, pending appeals. He has been out of jail for more than a year. And as some Washingtonians wonder:

"If he's a murderer, why did he only get 20 years? And if he's a murderer, what in God's name is he doing out of jail among the rest of us?"

Patler himself seems the only one not confused by the whole situation. He has lain awake many nights figuring it out. His conclusion is: "People are trying to make amends. I think the judge and jury realize I didn't kill anybody. I remember even the prosecutor, who demanded I get the chair; after the trial he walked up to me and said, 'I'm sorry, John, I had a job to do.' So I was a convenient scapegoat, that's all. I think those people all realize that now."

For those who knew John Patler in the bad old days, it's strange to see the man on the streets today. And not only because he has been convicted of murder.

As one of Rockwell's most trusted aides, Patler was strictly a Nazi stereotype—stiff, sneering, a hater of Jews, Negroes, Catholics; an altogether despicable sort who always tried to be uglier than thou. Yet in the autumn of this new decade, he appears an entirely different man. He has reassumed his birthright name (Patsalos) which he formerly cursed as too alien. He has abandoned the starched shirt and tie routine for open neck, semi-mod attire. His crew cut has grown out to bushiness. And, most interesting, he says he has begun to champion minority group misery as his own cause.

"It seems to shock people that I've changed from a hater of blacks to a lover of them. But really it's not all that strange. I've finally realized just how close I am to blacks, and browns and other depressed people. I'm Greek, I have dark eyes and dark hair — and here in America that can work against you. You can grow up, like the black, to think you just don't fit in."

"That's the reason I became a Nazi. I hated my name, I hated my nationality and I wanted to strike back at my hate. The Nazis seemed like a good place to do it. It was a special form of suicide, I guess. The Nazis were out to eliminate alien stock. I was out to eliminate my alien past — so I put on the swastika. But now I know that all of them, myself too, were sick."

Unfortunately, Patler's ideologic switch has not been followed by all of the Nazis of that day. The ANP folded with Rockwell's murder, but some diehards continue. The remnants formed another group — National Socialist White People's Party — and though very anemic, they are still around to haunt people. Mostly, they haunt Patler.

Occasionally, he says, "They cruise around my house shouting dirty things like 'greasy Greek.'" On one afternoon Patler's wife was shot at. In August the family received a live explosive in the mail.

In response, Patler lives a worried life. He moves often. Changes his name back and forth. Watches his step. "I think they're always watching me," he says, "so I never go any place without looking behind me. I know who most of them are — I think one of them may be the guy who really killed Rockwell. I don't think they'd have the guts to kill me, but who can tell?"

But bad as they are, the Nazis may be the least of John Patler's troubles. He can stick his hand into his lifesack and pull out any number of greater woes.

Money, for instance. He tried to start a Spanish-language newspaper but it folded after an issue. Now he supports his wife, two children and his court fight on

Affliction Causing Death to Sea Lions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dead sea lions washing up on California beaches contained the highest concentrations of DDT ever recorded in sea life, scientists say. But they think the animals died of something else.

"We are still checking," Dr. John Phillips of the Hopkins Marine Station at Pacific Grove, said Wednesday. "It could be due to many things."

Whatever it is, the affliction has caused at least 60 deaths in six weeks.

Dr. Richard Hubbard of the Marine Mammal Study Center in Fremont, said most of the victims have been young, maturing "teen-age type" sea lions, suggesting some infection to which their parents have developed an immunity.

Phillips said pesticide counts in blubber examined in autopsies ran as high as 3,900 parts per million. He added that the highest level ever measured before in sea life was 1,029 parts per million in a starry rock fish in Southern California's Santa Monica Bay, recently listed as having the highest pesticide contamination of any coastal waters in the country.

"This is pretty wild," he said. "We never expected anything of this magnitude, but we are not attributing the epizootic to DDT." An epizootic is the animal life equivalent of an epidemic.

Hubbard said mercury concentrations of 25 parts per million also have been found in the sea lion carcasses but that this was not enough to cause illness.

"The best evidence still suggests something of an infectious nature," he added, "but we are not, and I repeat not, closing any options at this time."

There was a similar epizootic in 1947, Hubbard said, and indications of another decade later, suggesting a cyclic illness, but no detailed examinations were made of the dead animals at that time.

Phillips said the pesticide found in the autopsies apparently washed into the Pacific from the largely agricultural Salinas Valley, settled to the ocean bottom and then worked up the ocean food chain into the fish on which the sea lions feed.

JOAN CROSBY

A John Wayne TV Special? Yup!

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The stagehand walked up to The Tall Man and said, "Excuse me, I'm going to move the National Monument."

He guided John Wayne aside as other stagehands carried out a forest that, moments earlier, had surrounded Pilgrims and Indians watching the purchase of Manhattan Island.

Wayne, Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker, Michael Landon and Hugh O'Brian were just a few of the stars standing around during taping of Wayne's first television special, the 90-minute Swing Out, Sweet Land, set for NBC-TV on Nov. 29.

Other guests in this highest-budgeted special of them all (and yet the stars are working for scale) are Dean Martin, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Dennis Weaver, William Shatner, Tommy Smothers, Ann-Margret, Lucille Ball, Leslie Uggams, Ross Martin, Doug Kershaw, Celeste Holm, Rowan and Martin, Red Skelton, Greg Morris, Jack Benny, Roy Clark and the Doodletown Pipers.

How do you line up a cast like that? Simple, according to Wayne: "I originally wanted to do a show on tradition for my children, but there was no time to go back East to film it. So someone said why not do it here and use people you've done favors for."

It was a happy set, with Dan Blocker as an Indian ad-libbing lines and breaking up the set. Wayne pulled his own good line during one take when he got in front of Dan and said, "I'd have a hell of a time trying to block him from the camera."

While the set was being rearranged, Wayne talked about the program. "Everybody thinks, 'Here comes John Wayne and his American tag and you'll hear preaching about this country and how you should be happy living here.' Well, there's not too much preaching here."

Obviously not all the guests share Duke's conservative political views, especially Tommy Smothers. What does he do?

"Tommy tells the dissenters to dissent with dignity," Wayne said. "He tells them to dissent without violence, because that's anarchy and men cannot live together in anarchy. He doesn't say that last part. I added it."

Dan Blocker was off in a corner, rehearsing a portion of "America the Beautiful," which he will sing. Dan is not a great singer, but he got a rousing ovation when he finished. "He's terrible," Duke Wayne mouthed, a big smile on his face. Dan came over, asking, "How did they ever get me to agree to sing?"

It started Wayne's memory. "They once wanted me to be a singing cowboy and I quit. So they went and hired a rodeo cowboy named Gene Autry."

When Wayne finishes the TV special, he starts another film, now called "The Million Dollar Kidnaping," although he doesn't like the title since it doesn't make the film sound like the Western it is.

"Boy, it's a good one," he said. "I'm anxious to do it. I usually get one good one every 10 years and here's this one so soon after the one-eye one, which I was also dying to do."

There was more action on the set. A group of sheriffs had dropped in to talk to Duke. They were getting close to taping another scene. He was needed in several places. But you ask one last question. What adjectives would he use to describe himself?

"There are some Spanish adjectives I like: feo fuerte y formidable—ugly, strong and with dignity."

Ads Seek to Link Liberal Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private political group has launched a newspaper advertising campaign seeking to link liberal Democratic Senate candidates in seven states with extremists.

In almost identical formats, six-column-wide ads in several medium and large newspapers

Tuesday and Wednesday suggested the five incumbents and two challengers are soft on crime, anti-police, in favor of legalizing marijuana, supporters of civil disorder and anti-American.

"What kind of Man is Joe Tydings?" ads in the Baltimore papers and nearby Washington Post asked Maryland voters Wednesday morning.

The organization identifying itself as sponsor of the ad is Committee for a Responsible Congress.

Consumer Protection: What Dale Bumpers has said about it:

Consumer Protection: What Governor Rockefeller has done about it:

Insurance Reform: 50 unsound insurance companies cleaned up.

Auto insurance non-cancellation bill passed.

Open hearings now required for rate increases.

Recently, auto and home owner rate increases have been turned down.

Utility Reform: Late payment penalties for utility bills have been decreased.

For the first time, quality service is being considered in setting rate increases.

Threats to utility franchises occur if service is poor.

Securities Reform: Arkansas Loan and Thrift broken up.

Licenses of 19 securities dealers and hundreds of agents have been terminated for selling "watered stock."

New exam required for brokers and agents.

Real Estate Reform: Conflict of interest stopped with separation of Real Estate Commission from a private lobby group.

Banking Reform: Bank laws modernized. Annual inspections of state banks now made. They had not been made before Governor Rockefeller took office.

Employment Agencies: Job applicants protected now from misleading advertising and unfair contracts.

Meat Inspection: New state program started greatly improves what was previously terrible inspection control.

Drug Licensing: Strict laws passed since 1967.

PERSONAL FINANCE

Record of Mutuals Under Fire Again

By RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Why choose a mutual fund as an investment vehicle?

The classic answer has always been a two-part statement: To get professional management for your money and to achieve diversification.

Back in the days when the Dow-Jones average was reaching for 1,000, you could get an occasional argument about the degree of fund diversification. But now that funds are generally on the ropes, battered by an unforgiving slide in stock prices, there are those who question the management as well.

The most recent questioners have been a trio of analysts working under a grant from the Twentieth Century Fund. Their published study of the investment results of the nation's mutual funds is apt to chill the blood of the small investor who has been inclined to look on the funds as his entry to the world of high finance.

To give it to you straight from the shoulder, these critics see little to crow about in the track records of the funds as a whole. As a matter of fact, they suggest that the professionals just don't do any better than could be done through random selection.

They never actually state it, but they seem to subscribe to the theory once advanced by a member of Congress. Throwing darts at a stock table, according to the lawmaker, was as good a method of investment selection as careful study.

The current study reinforces earlier doubts as to the quality of management by the funds. A 1962 report by the Wharton School of Finance cast a similar shadow on management. Critics faulted the Wharton study, however, on the basis of insufficient time span.

Right on the heels of Wharton came the University of Chicago. Its computers blipped away and discovered that for the period from 1926 to 1965, random selection among stocks listed on the New York Exchange would have produced a hefty 9.3 per cent annual return.

The present study doesn't stop at broad generalities. It also questions some of the folk wisdom that has grown up around the fund business.

For example, it finds little difference between the performance of funds that levy a sales charge and those that do not. It reports that "funds with the lowest sales charge (including the no-loads) seem to perform slightly better than the other funds . . ."

It even attacks the idea that small funds fare better than the large. "There does not seem to be any correlation between performance and size once risk is held constant," the report states.

Does all this mean that the fund concept is without merit? Probably not. Funds can still be a perfectly good vehicle for the small investor. But perhaps he ought to view his potential return in a more realistic light.

Buying into a fund is still a good way to achieve the kind of diversified risk that most of us would have trouble reproducing in straight stock purchases.

And most funds will accept money in small amounts, the kind that most stock salesmen will only sneer at.

What's a Nice Girl Like Sophia

Doing in a Place Like New York?

By ROGER DOUGHTY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Despite anything else that has or will happen, to me, 1970 is always going to be remembered as The Year Sophia Loren Came to New York. Got Stuck Up. Didn't Get Mad and Promised to Come Back. If you want to remember the decline of the stock market, that's your business. Everybody got pretty excited when Sophia decided to visit New York this last time around. She hadn't been here since 1965 and she was bringing her baby, Carlo Ponti Jr., not to mention Carlo Sr., so all of New York, including the members of the New York Chapter of the International Jewel Thieves Assn., rolled out the welcome mat.

In the interest of justice, I would like to inform the police department that the men who robbed Miss Loren were not reporters.

During the time reporters were trudging in and out of Sophia's hotel suite as she gave chain interviews, two guards stood sentry at the elevator door, a guy with a gun parked in the foyer of her suite and the whole thing looked like a scene from one of those movies where Michael Caine or Sean Connery or one of those guys tries to make off with the crown jewels. It would appear that as soon as the reporters went home, the guards departed, too. Such is the power of the press.

It is amazing how many friends you suddenly find when you let it be known that you're going to have a chat with Sophia. Everybody wanted to come along.

Arriving on the scene accompanied by Bill Crawford, noted photographer and sometime cartoonist, I made my way through the guards and up to the 22nd floor, where Sophia, clad in a brown knit kind of thing that had a hemline just above her celebrated knees (Fashion Editors: Please note.), led me to the sofa. Bill sat on a glass coffee table to take some pictures.

"Don't break the table," said Sophia, sounding fairly menacing, in a sultry sort of way. She turned to me:

"If I was the President of the United States I might have something important to say, but I'm only an actress. Who cares what I think about anything? Hey, I still think you're going to break that table. Besides, you're only taking profile pictures."

Sophia isn't all that crazy about having profile pictures taken because she thinks she has a big nose. She didn't like Bill sitting on the coffee table because it turned out to be hers.

"Everything in this apartment," she said, sweeping her hand around a room that contained several paintings, elaborate Mediterranean-looking tables and chairs and a rug that would make Joe Namath drool, "was flown in from Rome by Carlo. He likes me to be comfortable."

If you've ever wondered what Sophia likes to do when she isn't being the center of attraction, be informed that she tries to be as "normal" as possible.

"I play with my baby," she says. "I watch movies on TV, I listen to music and I make plans."

Sophia's plans include a return trip to New York, either in December or January, when she'll make a movie here.

"It will all be done in New York," she says. "It's just a comedy about a nice Italian girl who comes to New York and what happens to her."

Students Not as Active Politically

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

The number of students participating in fall election campaigns is not measuring up to expectations generated during the campus strikes last spring after U.S. troops entered Cambodia. But that doesn't necessarily mean youth's political activism is a flash in the pan.

"The fire burns white hot for short periods," said a Yale history professor whose classes have not been thinned by students departing for campaigns. Others, however, say the flame is intense and enduring but is, and has always been, small.

"It's turned out just about as I expected," said Princeton senior John Slifko, who is writing a book about the strike on his campus. "I don't think that anybody who had a reasonable perspective in May expected any more."

There were some reasons for expecting that the feeling aroused by the U.S. action in Cambodia and the student deaths at Kent State in Ohio and Jackson State in Mississippi would have an impact on political activity.

Thirty-nine per cent of 820 students questioned in a nationwide poll released in July said they planned to work for peace candidates this fall.

The strike following the Cambodian action spread to some 400 colleges and universities, and dozens considered proposals for a fall recess to accommodate students who wanted to campaign. About 30 ultimately rearranged schedules with plans to make up the lost class time and many more left room for informal arrangements such as moratoriums on quizzes and term papers.

The campus-based Movement for a New Congress, which was born and grew to a nationwide coordinating organization during the spring, claimed an 80 per cent victory rate in primary contests over the summer and hoped for 100,000 student volunteers this fall.

But MNC has had to cut its estimate of participants by half.

Princeton University, birthplace of the MNC and the independently promoted "Princeton

IN THE WINGS, waiting to fly, are astronauts David R. Scott, Alfred M. Worden and James B. Irwin (from left), crewmen for the Apollo 15 lunar landing mission. First, however, will come Apollo 14, scheduled for blast-off Jan. 31. The spacemen are posed with the lunar rover, to be used for first time on their mission.

Plan" for fall recess, has had only 400 to 500 of its 3,500 students working in November election races.

An Associated Press sampling indicated the picture is the same at other campuses where recesses of from two days to two weeks are in effect.

The MNC said recessed schools did not seem to be turning out significantly more volunteers than schools where other arrangements—or none—were in effect. The amount of participation at such institutions was harder to measure but definitely below expectations of politicians and school officials.

Why aren't the students working? One school of thought includes apathy, boredom, despair, fickleness and aversion to unglamorous work.

"Sure students want to help out. They want to be advisers, do research. All talk, no show," said Barry Wood, an aide to Colorado congressional candidate Craig Barnes.

Andrew Strauss, vice president of the University of Wisconsin student government, said many students believe elections are meaningless because government policies won't change no matter who wins, and "the few kids who are participating are the 'do-gooders' and the professional liberal politicians."

Other observers of the student political movement make three points: Much of the disappointment stems from inflated expectations, students still are turning out in large numbers, and those who are working are working hard and taking large amounts of responsibility.

Princeton's Slifko said he and history Prof. Frederick Starr looked over the campus scene about the first of June and concluded that although Princetonians voted 3,300 to 181 to strike last spring only 400 to 500 students actually spent time working on system politics—about the same number participating now.

"Local party workers tell us the number of volunteers we've got out in some areas is as much as 10 times the normal number," said Arthur Bushkin, coordinator of the Northern California MNC center. "The people we call up are coming out at a 75 per cent rate, and they turn out a second and third and fourth time, so the commitment is much higher."

And the campaign isn't over yet. "Almost everywhere we've been in touch with recently they say the turnout is off but that it's increasing," said national

Environment Cropping Into Campaigns

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environment is getting its first cautious test as a political issue in the election campaign now drawing to a close.

It's not a priority issue nationwide this year but whether it becomes a fightin' word in future elections may largely depend on its effectiveness at the polls Nov. 3.

While politicians everywhere profess love for environment and hate pollution, promise and performance have become real political factors in at least seven states—California, Delaware, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois and New York.

And at least nine states have environment-based referendum questions on their ballots.

A public opinion poll last August indicated the general public was starting to express concern over the environment; the number who named environmental protection as one of the nation's most pressing problems increased from two per cent in June to 10 per cent by the time the survey was made.

The ballot questions, however, may measure more accurately how much the public is willing to pay to protect its environment—and that answer, too, will not be lost on politicians.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel predicted last March "the party that recognizes the environment as one of the big issues of the 1970's, and writes the best record, is going to be the party that wins the most elections."

So far, it seems, "law-and-order," inflation and Vietnam still claim more concern than environment.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, a likely contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, has been using his vantage point as chairman of a Senate subcommittee on air and water pollution to build a record that could become the backbone of a White House campaign.

"This may be because many students aren't willing to commit two weeks to the campaign but they're willing to commit one," Taylor said.

And President Nixon embraced environment in his State of the Union message last January as "the great question of the seventies."

If current campaigns are any indication, environment is at least a potential issue in all parts of the country, in large states and small, and all points of the compass.

In populous California, Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan claims California "has turned the corner on smog" during his administration with auto exhaust limitations and fines against other pollution sources.

His Democratic challenger, Assemblyman Jess Unruh, charges, however, Reagan has failed on all counts to effectively fight pollution.

Environment is also an issue in another big California battle, the Senate race between Republican incumbent George Murphy and Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney.

At the other end of the nation, in New York's gubernatorial race Arthur J. Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice, charges that a state Pure Waters Program aimed at ending pollution by 1972 has failed, leaving state waterways dirtier than ever.

Incumbent Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller replies the program has made great strides, although it will probably miss its 1972 deadline because of inadequate funding and unforeseen delays. Rockefeller has promised legislation to solve the problem.

Goldberg says Rockefeller doesn't enforce antipollution laws; Rockefeller says he gets results by encouraging voluntary compliance.

Famous names face environment issues in Delaware and Illinois.

Pierre S. DuPont IV, scion of a giant chemical firm and the Republican candidate for Delaware's lone House seat, publicly ridiculed two recent pollution fines against his own company as being far too low.

His Democratic opponent, John D. Daniello, emphasizes tax penalties, as well as fines, against industrial polluters; DuPont favors tax incentives to encourage industrial pollution abatement.

In Illinois, state Treasurer Adlai E. Stevenson III, son of the two-time Democratic presidential candidate, has linked his opponent, Sen. Ralph T. Smith, with a polluting corporation; opposed development of the supersonic transport plane; and urged strict laws against pollution.

Smith, opposing pollution of Lake Michigan, has urged President Nixon to send his new Environmental Protection Agency against those who dump refuse into the lake.

In Idaho, a proposal by American Smelting and Refining Co.

to mine molybdenum in the White Cloud Mountains has become an issue in the state's gubernatorial race.

Gov. Don W. Samuelson, Republican seeking a second term, has supported the proposal, contending the environment could be protected. Democrat Cecil D. Andrus strongly opposed it, on grounds of environmental legislation.

In Hawaii, Democrat Cecil Heftel, strongly challenged in the primary by a fervent conservationist, has adopted the environment in his effort to unseat Republican Sen. Hiram L. Fong. Fong devoted a full-page newspaper ad to his own actions on environmental issues.

In Georgia, Dick Fullerton, a Republican seeking election to Congress, is counting heavily on the support of voters opposed to a proposed interstate highway across Allatoona Lake. He blames incumbent Republican Rep. John Davis, in part, for the proposed location.

Alabama Sues U.S. to Get Back Property

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state of Alabama filed suit in the U.S. Court of Claims today against the federal government seeking to recover more than $21 million for the alleged taking of school property in that state.

MacDonald Gallion, Alabama attorney general, filed the suit.

The basis of Gallion's demand is that the federal government, in its desegregation efforts, has forced Alabama to terminate educational activities and instruction in many school buildings and to close and abandon these buildings.

This, Gallion told reporters in a sidewalk news conference at the court building, caused a loss to Alabama and its citizens without their being given just compensation.

He said the suit is based on the 5th Amendment to the Constitution, that the government shall not take property without just compensation. He said that in ordering the closing of the schools the government, through its courts and agencies, has in effect taken the properties.

The suit lists $21,174,792 as the exact amount of claims sought.

The world's highest chimney rises 1,250 feet and is located in the Sudbury district of Ontario.

feller's lavish campaign expenditures.

In his own remarks, Fulbright said Bumpers would serve as governor with integrity and other virtues. Two of the senator's words, "with sobriety," were partly obscured in the telecast, evidently because of an attempt to blip them out.

Deloss Walker, campaign manager for Bumpers, said later he would check to find out what had happened. Drinking by Rockefeller has been an issue in the past but Bumpers has made no major remarks about it in this campaign.

Walker said he had no advance knowledge that Mills would appeal to Carruth to withdraw and added, "I see nothing wrong with it. I think it's great in fact."

Walker said he did not think Mills made the statement because Carruth might be pulling votes away from Bumpers. Walker said polls indicated that Carruth "is not a factor at all in the race."

He said Carruth was not hurting Bumpers, although he said Bumpers would be the candidate who could be damaged by the Carruth candidacy because "the majority of the American Independents ... are made up of Democrats."

Mills linked development of the Republican party in Arkansas with national GOP policies that he said had been harmful to Arkansans. Addressing himself to certain groups, the congressman cited Republican programs that he said had created hardship for the people.

Mills said working people should say they have had enough of the unemployment he attributed to a Republican "planned design."

Farmers lost millions of dollars in income through the 15 per cent reduction in rice production decreed by President Nixon's administration and national farm income will be reduced $1.5 billion through the only agriculture bill the administration considered acceptable, Mills said.

He said housewives concerned about rising prices for "everything you need for human existence" should blame Republicans for having done "nothing whatsoever to stop it."

Businessmen whose profits are down can expect more of the same as unemployment increases under Nixon's anti-inflationary program, Mills said.

Blacks should turn to the Democratic party because young Negroes make up more of the unemployed than any other age group and race, the congressman said.

Mills addressed himself to Carruth, characterizing the American party nominee as a "fine gentleman and highly motivated."

"Carruth is taking voters 'away from my friend, Dale Bumpers,'" Mills said, adding, "that's just the same thing as trying to elect the present governor."

Mills said he knew Carruth did not seek the re-election of Rockefeller, but that Carruth's candidacy had become less meaningful since the state Supreme Court had ruled that no runoff will be required if none of the candidates receive a majority vote in the balloting Tuesday.

Mills, who seldom has injected himself into other races, said, "What are you doing?"

He urged Carruth to "please let them (Democrats for Carruth) come back to the Democratic party and you come back yourself. We welcome you with open arms."

Carruth did not see the telecast, but in a telephone interview he laughed when a reporter apprised him of the congressman's remarks.

"That's real comical," Carruth said. "I haven't left the Democratic party. It left me. I still call myself a Southern Democrat. The ones who call themselves the Democratic party have allowed it to go to national socialism and I'm not going to go there."

Carruth said he had "never given a thought" to withdrawing from the race and would not do so.

"I'm not trying to hurt Mr. Bumpers, but I realize that I'm hurting him and Mr. Rockefeller because I'm drawing the conservative vote," Carruth said. "They hurt themselves. They've chosen to be socialists. I haven't."

Marion Burton, campaign director for Rockefeller, said after the telecast that the remarks by Mills indicate that "they're seriously concerned about what Carruth is doing to Bumpers." He declined further comment for the time being.

Rockefeller has pledged to veto any attempt to water down the state Freedom of Information law, but Bumpers did not go that far when asked about the law during his telecast.

"I'm essentially in agreement with that," he said.

But he added that he thought that the law might have been unfairly used one or two times. "I won't say I won't veto something because I don't know all the ins and outs," Bumpers said.

Asked if he had sent a letter to Rockefeller requesting a campaign donation, Bumpers laughed and said it was a computer letter.

"He ought to have his feelings hurt because I've had seven or eight from him and a lot of other mail besides," Bumpers said. "In that letter I said if you want good government make a contribution so maybe he will."

Same Interest Rate in New Constitution

By ROBERT SHAW Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Several attempts were made in the Constitutional Convention to allow higher interest rates to be charged in the state, but the delegates ultimately stood fast by the current constitutional limit of 10 per cent a year.

The usury provision was one of the more controversial items with which the convention had to deal in drafting the Constitution of 1970.

Encouraged by state bankers to lift the limit, but urged by others to keep the 10 per cent ceiling to help the "working man," the course the convention adopted probably won the proposed new charter supporters who otherwise would be driven off.

Another controversial provision in the 1874 Constitution that was retained by the convention was the so-called "right-to-work" law, which prohibits denial of employment because of membership in a labor union or refusal to join a union.

Inclusion of the article is believed to be the major reason why labor unions have refused to endorse the proposed charter.

The document prohibits lotteries and all other forms of gambling except parimutuel wagering on horse racing in Garland County (Hot Springs) and greyhound racing in Crittenden County (West Memphis).

The current Constitution permits parimutuel wagering on horses in Garland County. Betting on dog races in Crittenden County has been authorized by state statute, but Eastern Arkansas delegates fought won it constitutional status in the new document.

The General Assembly would continue to regulate wagering and racing under the proposed constitution.

The present Constitution gives the state immunity from suits. The proposed charter makes the state immune except for breach of contract suits. The legislature would provide for immunity for local governments.

Among constitutional items retained by the Constitution of 1870 is a prohibition against dual office holding and authority for the legislature to establish workmen's compensation laws.

Articles found in the proposed constitution and not found in the current charter include requirements that the General Assembly enact a code of ethics for state and local government officials and employees and provide for treatment of uneducable handicapped persons.

The proposal also contains a statement that the state's natural beauty and resources shall be conserved and developed. It would require the General Assembly to prevent pollution.

Among articles deleted from the present Constitution are detailed provisions on agriculture, mining, manufacturing, the state militia, railroads, canals, and printing contracts, which the Constitutional Convention believed were statutory, rather than constitutional, in nature.

Also dropped were what were considered to be archaic provisions, such as one penalizing dueling.

The proposed charter incorporates recent amendments added to the Constitution of 1874, such as those allowing the creation of community colleges and public kindergartens.

The proposed constitution is composed of 12 articles and a three-part schedule, compared to 19 articles, a schedule and 53 amendments in the Constitution of 1874.

The proposed document shortens the current Constitution from about 46,000 words to 13,573 words in the proposed charter itself and 3,169 in the schedule.

Schedule one of the proposed constitution contains provisions that have the same effect as statutes passed by the legislature but they could not be declared unconstitutional.

Schedule two provisions have the same effect as initiated acts—they may be changed only by a two-thirds vote of both houses of the legislature—except that they could not be declared unconstitutional.

Schedule three is for temporary provisions that provide for the transition from the 1874 to 1970 constitutions.

All laws under the 1874 Constitution that would not be in conflict with the proposed new constitution would remain in effect. All officials elected under the 1874 Constitution, including those elected next Tuesday, would serve full terms.

The Constitution of 1970 would go into effect July 1, 1971, with certain exceptions.

Candidate to Observe Tradition

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Elizabeth Kreshtool respects tradition. Therefore she's busy preparing her loser's speech for election night.

Mrs. Kreshtool is the substitute Democratic candidate for the Delaware Legislature in a district where Republicans have won for the last 114 years—since the party was formed.

She accepted the nomination last week after the original candidate pulled out, but only after being assured she would lose.

Right away she won the endorsement of the Procrastinators Society of America, which sent her a telegram. She quickly took a day off, apparently fearing her campaign would peak too soon.

Then she selected a campaign manager whose last candidate lost by 34,000 votes. After he disappeared, her husband, one arm in a sling, stepped in to let out some more slack.

Now she's ready for that speech. In a tongue-in-cheek try at her political valedictory she intones: "The TV, radio and the press won't have Kreshtool to kick around any more."

Dear Judge Fulk:

This is in reply to your recent opinion request wherein you ask for a ruling on whether it is legal for a person who voted in either primary to vote for a nominee of the other party in the General Election.

Please be advised that the prohibition against "cross-over" voting applies only to primaries and does not extend to General Elections. A voter may vote for the nominee of his choosing in the General Election, regardless of the party primary in which he voted.

Very truly yours,

Sense of Service Spurs Sarge

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It's 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the Pan Am building, and the lunch crowd is thinning out at Charley Brown's on the ground floor. Sargent Shriver, coming up on the shuttle from Washington, will show any minute.

Only a few of the Martini sippers linger at the bar. Shriver's entourage should stick out in that crowd—maybe a couple of brisk young aides, with Bobby Kennedyish hair, a secretary with big round glasses for sure.

But with the big hand a couple of minutes past the "12," the frosted glass doors swing in, and this trim man in gray—suit, tie, hair—strides through. Alone. No hesitation. You don't pick him out. He picks you out. All he has with him is his leather attache case.

He smiles tightly. It's natural. His lips are thin. He says he's hungry and let's sit down.

He's ready to talk before the food comes, and the thoughts flow pungently and forcefully. He's appalled with the state of the United States. That's why he's involved in this new project, called Congressional Leadership for the Future (CLF), with the little office on the fifth floor at K Street in Washington.

He says this is the first time he hasn't been on a payroll since he was 16 years old. He has to work. He has a wife and five kids and a big place in Maryland (of course, his wife is one of the Kennedy girls, Eunice, and he's a Yale man with a long career in business and the first Peace Corps director). He'll think about a job after the elections in November.

Meanwhile, it's important to get new blood in Congress, to make a dent in the seniority system, get rid of some of the old —s who dominate the channels of government. What swung him, he says, was that 100 congressmen came to him and asked him to rally support for Democratic candidates, from Hubert H. Humphrey in Minnesota to Ella Grasso in Connecticut.

The CLF includes people from Burt Bacharach, the song writer, to Ara Parseghian, the football coach, to "The Honorable John D. Rockefeller IV of West Virginia."

He pauses to put on black plastic-rimmed glasses for the menu. Beef broth and barley, 95 cents. Down in a hurry. Raw ground beef on rye toast with piccalilli, $3.95. He scrunches sideways to attack it with a fork. He talks between mouthfuls.

Yes, Shriver himself contemplated running for governor of Maryland, but the internal politics of the situation drove him off. That and a threat of no campaign funds. It would take too long to explain. He wasn't like Dick Ottinger, who could go to his mother and say he needed another million, or Teddy Kennedy, who didn't have to worry if he could afford to run for senator.

He explains casually that he's no millionaire. Besides, is this a time to get involved with political wheeling and dealing at the statehouse level when the whole country is in a state of ferment?

Being away two years in France as the U.S. ambassador for Presidents Johnson and Nixon until this past June gave him a new viewpoint that scares him. He hasn't seen anything like the mood of the United States since he was a visiting student in Germany before World War II and the Nazi movement swept Hitler to power. He says if you don't display the flag, you're suspect. And he has seen it in California and Nebraska and New York, this wave of superpatriotism. He also has seen the bitterness of east Los Angeles, where a guy should be afraid to walk the street.

He thinks Nixon, isolated in the presidency, doesn't sense this. He says the President shows regal tendencies of European monarchs with his "summer palaces" in Key Biscayne and San Clemente and Camp David and he wouldn't be surprised if in two years they were holding cabinet meetings there.

He realizes his political activism could be construed as a springboard for his own thrust as a presidential candidate. But he doesn't see it. Oh, sure, if anything happened to an obvious candidate, such as Sen. Edmund Muskie, it might change.

But right now he feels he can perform a service because he can get such disparate people as Congressman Joe D. Waggoner Jr. of Louisiana (conservative) and Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut (liberal wing) to work in a common cause.

That leads up to dessert—raspberry sherbet, swallowed with black coffee.

Through all the dialogue, Shriver is impassioned, earthy, direct. He likes to talk. After an hour and a half nonstop, you better believe it.

Agnew Lays Out Welcome Mat to South

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew winds up a final campaign visit to the South today after laying out the Republican welcome mat to Southern Democrats.

Denying that the administration seeks to steal any thunder from George C. Wallace—"We don't try to steal anybody's thunder"—Agnew told newsmen Wednesday:

"We're just trying to do our thing, in the current vernacular, which is an attempt to convince people that the programs of President Nixon are the right programs for the country."

Agnew was scheduled to leave Alabama today for a campaign appearance in Wichita, Kan.

The vice president was appearing in Alabama in behalf of Republican candidates for Congress and the GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, Bob French.

Wallace, who captured about 13 per cent of the 1968 presidential vote as a third-party candidate, is the Democratic candidate for governor and is considered a certain winner over five others, none of them Republican.

Agnew's speech here to some 5,000 who paid $10 each to get into the Municipal Auditorium Wednesday was reminiscent in content of Wallace's 1968 attacks on the news media and "pointy-headed intellectuals."

Agnew said, "One word to the supersensitive, self-annointed, supercilious electronic barons of opinion—and my apologies to the national commentators who do not fit that description."

JOB PROTECTION or JOB REDUCTION

If the railroads do not want to cut-off 500 working men, why do they want to repeal Arkansas' Full Crew Laws?

Sure, these railroads are promising job protection, but the truth is these men have not been guaranteed a single paycheck.

Arkansas railroad men are tax payers and support our government, schools, churches and spend millions with our merchants in the state. Arkansas needs this income.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE WITHOUT FULL CREWS

A 60% increase in train accidents without full crews is revealed in an Interstate Commerce Commission report for the years 1963-68 from the Department of Transportation M-400.

Japs Dump Products on U.S. Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Treasury has ruled that Japan has dumped on the U.S. market ferrite cores, used in electronic products, with a value of more than $650,000. On the other hand, the Treasury found that Japanese loudspeakers valued at almost $46 million were sold at fair value in the United States.

The effect of the two determinations was to open an investigation by the U.S. Tariff Commission on the ferrite core case to determine to what extent injury exists for American producers.

The antidumping charges against the Japanese loudspeaker imports for the period from Jan. 1, 1968 through April 30, 1970 will now be dropped.

There are 14 other cases involving Japanese imports still pending before the Treasury Department under the antidumping procedure. The largest of all cases is that involving imports of Japanese black and white and colored television. These imports had a value of $250 million in 1969.

North America will have two teams playing in 1971 World's championship. The defending champion Dallas Aces with Oswald Jacoby as nonplaying captain, will be one. The other has yet to be determined, but the captain will be Lee Hazen of New York.

Lee is a practicing lawyer who has found time to win four Vanderbilt and three Spingolds among other tournament successes. He has not been active in tournament play lately but still plays very good rubber bridge.

In today's hand, we find Lee at three no-trump. West, a well-known expert, opened the king of hearts. East played the deuce and it was up to Lee to proceed.

As you can see, if Lee takes his ace, he will lose the diamond finesse and four heart tricks will cook his goose. If he ducks, it is a cinch for expert West to find the deadly shift to the club suit. One heart, one diamond and three clubs will leave him one trick short.

Now, see if you can figure how Lee made the hand. It wasn't done with mirrors. Lee nonchalantly played his jack of hearts under West's king.

Put yourself in West's place. West knew that Lee was perfectly capable of dropping the jack from ace-jack-small. If East had also been an expert, or had been one of those players who automatically plays next to top when partner leads a king against no-trump, West would have shifted to a club anyway. West thought but finally lead a second heart.

Lee won that trick and lost the diamond finesse. Since East had started with just two hearts, he did not have one to lead to his partner but that didn't matter. If East held another heart, West would only be able to take two heart tricks and a total of four tricks won't beat three no-trump.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"Uncle Sam" originated from Samuel Wilson, a U.S. Army inspector of provisions in Troy, N.Y. The World Almanac recalls. In October, 1812, visitors touring Wilson's plant asked what the initials "EA-US" on barrels stood for. A workman stated that EA stood for Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and added jokingly that the US stood for "Uncle Sam" Wilson.

Alcohol Poor Teammate For Diet's Restrictions

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Do you have a drug habit? If you use alcohol regularly you do. Nearly 80 per cent of American men and over 60 per cent of American women use alcohol.

Alcohol is a good drug to elevate one's mood, to relieve anxiety or as a sedative. It also is a good disinfectant. Other than that, alcohol is a harmful drug. It is NOT good for the heart, as some believe.

A single cocktail activates stores of adrenal products and increases the heart rate. Count your heart rate before and 30 minutes after a Martini and you'll see what I mean.

Alcohol is said to be a factor in over half of our highway deaths. It first relieves anxiety and inhibitions by its action on the brain, then begins to affect motor actions, such as speech, walking and driving. The daily cocktail eventually destroys a number of brain cells and, unless you have a lot to spare, it may permanently affect your brain function.

You may have heard that alcohol is not fattening. Nonsense! Alcohol, ounce for ounce, contains nearly as many calories as fat and practically twice as many calories as pure carbohydrate or protein. Moreover, because it reduces willpower and stimulates the appetite most people cannot adhere to a restricted calorie intake and drink alcohol. I have not been successful in getting people to continue on a diet if they have an evening cocktail each night.

Dr. Timothy Regan of Newark, N.J., demonstrated that after eight weeks of drinking 12-16 ounces of Scotch daily, there was evidence of heart damage and an increased heart rate. This was seen in healthy, well-nourished men. Often the heavy drinker doesn't get enough of the right food and this adds to the problem. If you must drink a good deal, at least be sure you get plenty of food and vitamins. The vitamin B group, particularly thiamine and proteins,

After Three Generations of the Old State Constitution, Vote for New One Makes Sense

SARASOTA, Fla., Oct. 28 (Air Mail) — It might seem presumptuous to write an election commentary while recovering from surgery a thousand miles from home but it is an editor's obligation to do so.

Complicated questions confront the voters on Tuesday and no man, however well informed he may be, knows all the answers. The best I can do is tell you how I marked my absentee ballot before mailing it last Saturday — and you can take these opinions for whatever they are worth.

I voted for three Republicans, Rockefeller for governor, Cockrill for lieutenant-governor, and Hammerschmidt for congress. For the rest I voted Democratic.

I voted for the proposed new constitution—and this is the most important issue in Tuesday's election.

People dislike change, particularly when it affects the basic law of the state. But the present constitution was written in 1874. Everything else in the United States and Arkansas has changed in the last three generations and it is a fair presumption to say that the state constitution needs updating, too.

Many able men worked for months on the proposed new constitution, among them Bill Eiter, our Hempstead county delegate. Such devotion to Arkansas at least deserves the consideration and faith and support of their fellow citizens.

Here are some high-lights of the proposed constitution: It would provide for:

A four-year term for governor, limited to two consecutive terms.

Combine the office of secretary of state with the lieutenant-governor.

Reform the judiciary, still providing for the election of all judges.

At the county level the judicial powers still remaining with the county judge would be transferred to the district courts. The prosecuting attorney would be renamed the district attorney.

A county council would be set up, comprising five or seven members, each elected from a separate district in the county so no one area such as Hope could dominate it. The county quorum court and its j.p. members would be abolished.

No one is completely satisfied with the proposed new constitution. It contains one provision I am strongly opposed to. It forbids assessing real property at a rate higher than 20 per cent for 10 years after ratification in Tuesday's vote. But I have to vote for the new charter because of the desperate situation Arkansas' cities have been placed in by a constitution written back in 1874.

The new constitution itself does not levy any tax except the present 5-mill city and 5-mill county taxes.

But it does permit cities to vote, if they so choose, to levy local sales or income taxes—unless the legislature prohibits such action by a three-fifths vote.

The constitutional question is a tough one and no one has all the answers. I favor passage of the new charter—but as many citizens as possible should be heard on the issue.

I have suggested to the Little Rock Bureau of the Associated Press that it line up public statements pro and con state-wide, and made the same suggestion to our general manager, Paul H. Jones, at the local level.

Thanks for your attention to a statement from a thousand miles away—and I expect to be back with you soon.

Welfare Surge 20 Per Cent in a Year

By G. C. THELEN Jr.

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's welfare rolls have ballooned 20 per cent in the past year to a record 12.2 million persons, the government's latest statistics show.

The increase of two million welfare recipients from June 1969 to June 1970 is causing a severe tax squeeze at all levels of government and cutbacks in some welfare services and payments.

Federal officials say President Nixon's current $8.7 billion welfare budget may have to be boosted by as much as $1 billion to cover the unexpected new costs.

Government experts cite three factors in the welfare surge: The lagging economy and attendant unemployment; recent court rulings and administrative decisions loosening welfare eligibility requirements, and a new willingness among the poor to apply for welfare following publicity campaigns by antipoverty organizations describing relief as a right and not a mark of discredit.

The federal government pays about 52 per cent of the nation's welfare bill for dependent children and their mothers, the blind, the disabled and the needy aged. State and local governments split the remainder.

Property tax increases are expected in such cities as Milwaukee and Los Angeles to help finance the welfare load, federal officials say. Some Ohio counties recently introduced a new sales tax for the same purpose.

At the same time, relief services are being sliced because of the cost crunch.

The cost of federally assisted welfare has doubled in the past four years, says Federal Welfare Administrator John D. Twinn, and could double again by 1975 if President Nixon's proposed family assistance welfare reform measure is not enacted by Congress.

The bulk of the welfare-load increase in the past year has come in the program aiding families with dependent children—ADC. About 80 per cent of ADC recipients are abandoned children or those whose mothers are unmarried.

British GI Shoots a Civilian

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier shot a civilian early today during a four-hour street battle between Roman Catholics and troops which the army said was punctuated by sniping.

The army brought the rioting under control with riot gas just before dawn.

An army spokesman changed an earlier statement that said the civilian was wounded accidentally.

"We regret that further inquiries have shown that the statement issued earlier to the effect that the discharge of a shot from a firearm in Brompton Park was accidental was incorrect," he said.

He refused a more detailed statement except to say "a further inquiry is being held."

Laison Men to Colleges

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has sent liaison men to at least 14 predominantly Negro land-grant institutions, including Arkansas AM&N Colleges, to help foster a transition in each college's agriculture department from farm production to business agriculture.

Dr. Richard N. Jorgensen will serve as a liaison man to AM&N's agriculture department. Dr. Lawrence A. Davis, AM&N president, said Jorgensen would also try to bring additional revenue into the AM&N department and recruit students.

U.S., Russia Agree to Space Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union, in a move that could allow either to rescue the others' spacemen, have agreed to standardize future spacecraft, a U.S. official says.

Arnold W. Frutkin, assistant administrator for international affairs at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Thursday the agreement was signed a day earlier in Moscow.

Frutkin said the text will not be made public, as a matter of courtesy, until there has been an exchange of letters between M. V. Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and Dr. George M. Low, acting NASA administrator.

Frutkin, who recently returned from the Moscow conference, said Soviet space engineers indicated they plan to design a tunnel exit like that in American spacecraft. The change would allow spacecraft of the two nations to dock in orbit.

He said the agreement will not affect current spacecraft or the American Skylab program, which will follow Apollo in 1972. It is considered likely that the agreement will affect the space shuttles and space station programs each nation has on the drawing boards.

Alabama S. Student Shot Fatally

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A 20-year-old Alabama State University student was shot fatally today during an exchange of gunfire between campus guards and a group of persons police say were not students.

The dead student was identified as Michael Casher of Mobile. Officers said they are holding a 16-year-old youth in the case.

Police Capt. Raymond Moody said about 30 shots were fired in what he called "a regular shootout."

Officers said the shootout was the result of a fight between students and the nonstudents that began prior to a scheduled dance.

They said the nonstudents left the campus and then returned shortly before the gunfire started. Five campus guards returned the fire with .38-caliber guns, and Casher was hit by a .22-caliber bullet, officers said.

Attacked by Unruly Mob, Nixon Says

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) President Nixon, the target of rocks, bricks, bottles, eggs, red flags and other missiles hurled by antiwar demonstrators in his native state, says he was attacked by "an unruly mob that represents the worst in America."

Nixon, riding away from a Republican rally Thursday night in the San Francisco bay city of San Jose, was besieged by hundreds of obscenity-shouting protesters. With him in his limousine were California Gov. Ronald Reagan and U.S. Sen. George Murphy.

Later, after the President arrived at the Western White House in San Clemente, a fire caused smoke damage in the ocean-side villa and forced a pajama-clad Nixon to evacuate. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the blaze was caused by heat conducted downward from the fireplace in Nixon's second-floor study to wood within the hollow wall of the dining room below.

The San Jose violence was the most serious aimed at any president in this country since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

Emerging from an auditorium where GOP partisans had given him a "warm reception," Nixon climbed atop the hood of his limousine in the glare of photo floodlights.

Facing directly toward his noisy opponents about 50 yards away, he thrust his jaw forward and flung both arms upward. With his fingers, he formed "V" symbols, waving toward the crowd.

Most of the demonstrators were young persons, hundreds of whom had rallied at the San Jose State College campus for a march to the auditorium.

The mobbing of the Nixon motorcade lasted perhaps five minutes as his car moved through a narrow opening that had been cleared in the crowd by helmeted riot police.

His limousine and other vehicles in the cavalcade were hit repeatedly by large rocks and other objects. Several persons, including a Secret Service agent, a newsman and a television cameraman suffered minor injuries.

The second auto behind Nixon's vehicle stalled when, after it was hit by a rock, its policeman-driver slammed on the brakes. This produced a chain reaction crash of six cars—none seriously damaged—that brought a loud cheer from the crowd pushing in on each side.

Fair, Cool Weather for Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair and cool weather continues in Arkansas.

Thursday the National Weather Service predicted frost for the northern sections of the state. However, a new warm front developed and shoved into the area elevating temperatures 10 degrees higher than expected.

The forecast is for continued fair skies and cool nights with milder temperatures during the day. The low tonight will be mid 30s to lower 40s and the high Saturday mid 60s.

Highs Thursday ranged from 69 at El Dorado and Fort Smith to 63 at Fayetteville and Harrison.

Overnight lows were Fayetteville, 46; Harrison, 48; Jonesboro, 42; Pine Bluff, 39; Texarkana, 43; El Dorado, Memphis and Little Rock, 38, and Fort Smith 37.

Bumpers Asks Chile Plans Takeover of All Foreign Firms, No Red Government

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep.

Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., appealed Thursday night for Walter Carruth, American party gubernatorial nominee, to return to the Democratic fold and bring with him the votes he has taken from Democratic nominee Dale Bumpers.

Carruth, contacted at his home in Lexa, said, "No." Mills made his pitch as part of a testimonial for Bumpers by the Democratic members of the Arkansas congressional delegation in a telecast in which Bumpers earlier had responded to 21 questions asked by viewers by telephone and by a panel in the studio.

Mills and Reps. David Pryor and Bill Alexander were in the studio. Sen. John L. McClellan sent encouragement by telegram and Sen. J. W. Fulbright commented in a videotaped section aired during the Bumpers telecast.

Fulbright, saying the principal issue was the use being made of the "enormous fortune" of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, Republican gubernatorial nominee, read an Arkansas Gazette editorial criticizing Rockefeller.

Legion Makes Scholarships Available

American Education Week observance, sponsored by the Leslie Huddleston Unit 12 American Legion Auxiliary, will run through Saturday, Mrs. Lucy Mae Williams, chairman reports.

Posters and booklets were placed in the high school, store windows and the Legion handbook, "Need a Lift" was placed in the High School library and Hempstead County Library to inform students on college scholarships available to high school seniors.

A $150 scholarship will be awarded in May to a high school student who is the daughter or son of a needy veteran and three department scholarships are awarded from the department scholarship fund. Two nurses scholarships of $250 each and one academic $500 scholarship. Also to daughters of veterans a $1,000 scholarship.

The National Presidents' award from the Southern Division has gone to two Hope students in the past five years. The first to Gayle Williams in 1965 and the second to Judy Croom in 1969.

Applications and information will be available in December

Chile Plans Takeover of All Foreign Firms, No Red Government

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) —

Salvador Allende, the Marxist senator who will become president of Chile next Tuesday, says he will nationalize foreign companies but will not set up a Communist government.

Allende told 100 newsmen at a news conference Thursday that nationalization of foreign industry is "an economic and social necessity."

He said he will first take over copper, iron and nitrate mining and that "the country will be informed later of what other monopolies we are going to nationalize."

Chile is the world's largest producer of copper, and two American companies—Anaconda and Kennecott—do most of the mining. The outgoing government of President Eduardo Frei took 51 per cent of the companies' Chilean subsidiaries.

Allende also said his government will continue the investigation of the assassination last week of Gen. Rene Schneider, the army commander, and that everything possible is being done to "bring the guilty ones to justice."

Sweat Suit for Women Is Scheduled Next by Fashion Designers

NEW YORK (AP) — Let it be noted that this column was the first to let it out of the bag. According to fashion insiders, after the middie comes—as some of you may have already suspected—the sweat suit.

The fashion world is all afluster with the news. To gauge the impact of this latest wave in women's wear, we interviewed several leading designers. "It should be the biggest thing since the sack dress," said Amherst Bean who in years past brought us the pullover belt. "I'm right in the middle of creating three sweat suit ensembles for evening wear next spring."

Putting down his pet Pekinese, he walked over to a drawing board.

"Here's my favorite model," he said. "I call it Sweat Suite de la Nuit."

The drawing showed a totally black sweat suit.

"This outfit stresses simplicity," he said. "Because of that, I recommend only a single strand of white pearls to go with it. You know, basic black and a string of pearls."

Anna Climb, creator of the prune-skin smock, was also busy preparing a line of sweat suits for spring.

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) —

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller completed his seven-day helicopter tour of the state Thursday, visiting seven cities and continuing his attack on Dale Bumpers, his Democratic opponent.

He visited Walnut Ridge, Pocahontas, Paragould, Piggott, Corning and Tammann before addressing 500-600 persons in a tent at the Craighead County Fairgrounds here.

Rockefeller quoted Bumpers as saying unemployment in the state is the highest it has been in a decade.

"I'm telling you that's a flat lie," Rockefeller said.

During a speech that lasted almost an hour, Rockefeller lashed out at Bumpers several times.

"Nobody ever heard of him six months ago," Rockefeller said. "And I trust no one will remember his name six months from now."

"Mr. Bumpers says industry is leaving Arkansas," Rockefeller said. "But I know for a fact that the AIDC (Arkansas Industrial Development Commission) has said that June and July were the best months ever for Arkansas industrially."

At Paragould, Rockefeller defended his administration against charges of extravagance.

"I cannot spend one cent more than approved by the legislature," the governor told 250-300 persons. "If there was extravagance, then it came from the legislature."

Rockefeller told about 1,000 persons at Hoxie that he would continue to work for Arkansas no matter what the outcome of Tuesday's election.

"I will stay here and go on working for Arkansas whether I am elected or not," he said. "I will be your governor until January whether you like it or not. You'll notice I didn't say what January."

Rockefeller continued his charges that Bumpers has "no philosophy" or record.

The governor, referring to Bumpers' statement that he wanted to unite the Democratic party, said, "Let's give Bumpers more time to unite the Democrats and let me go on and do what I have been doing."
